LEGEND '76

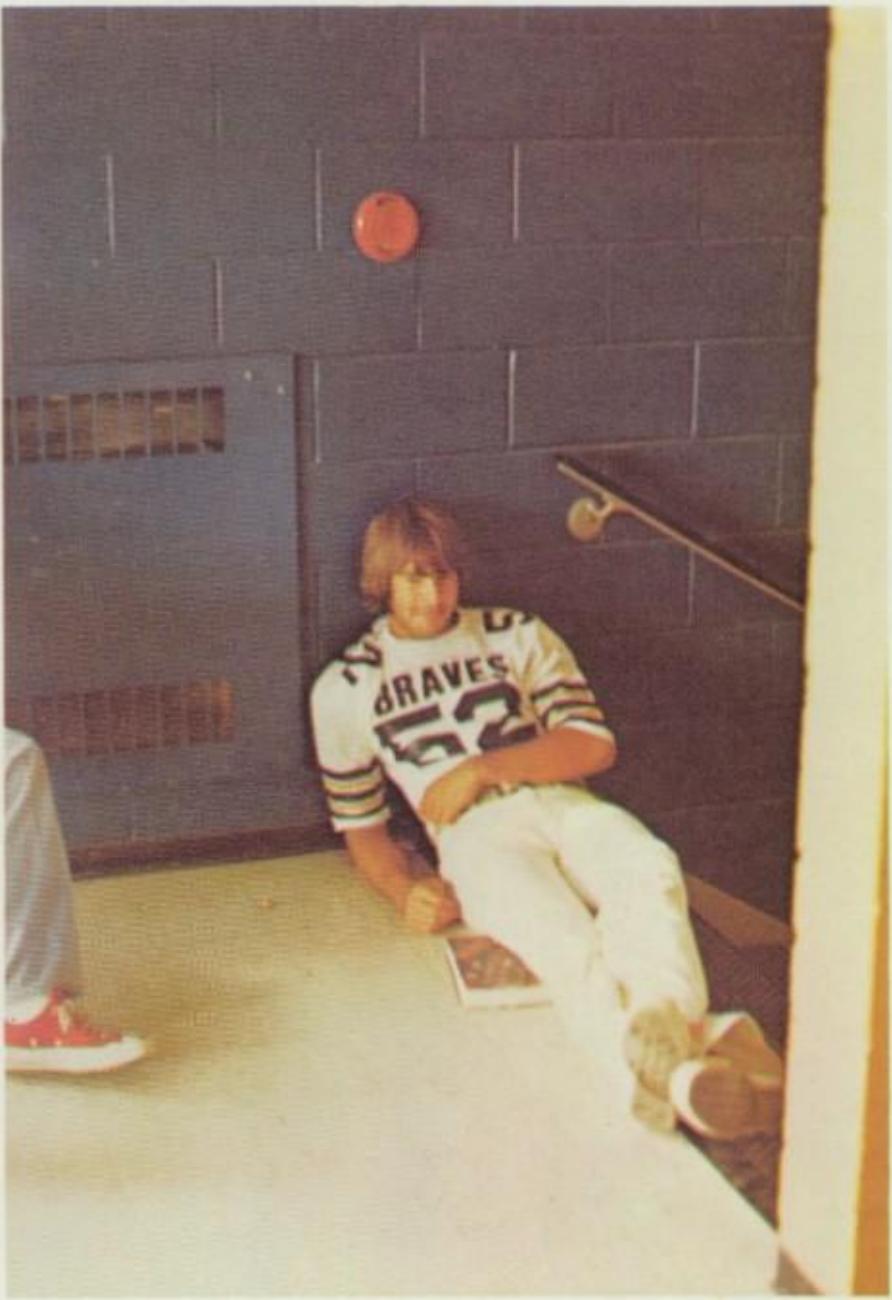

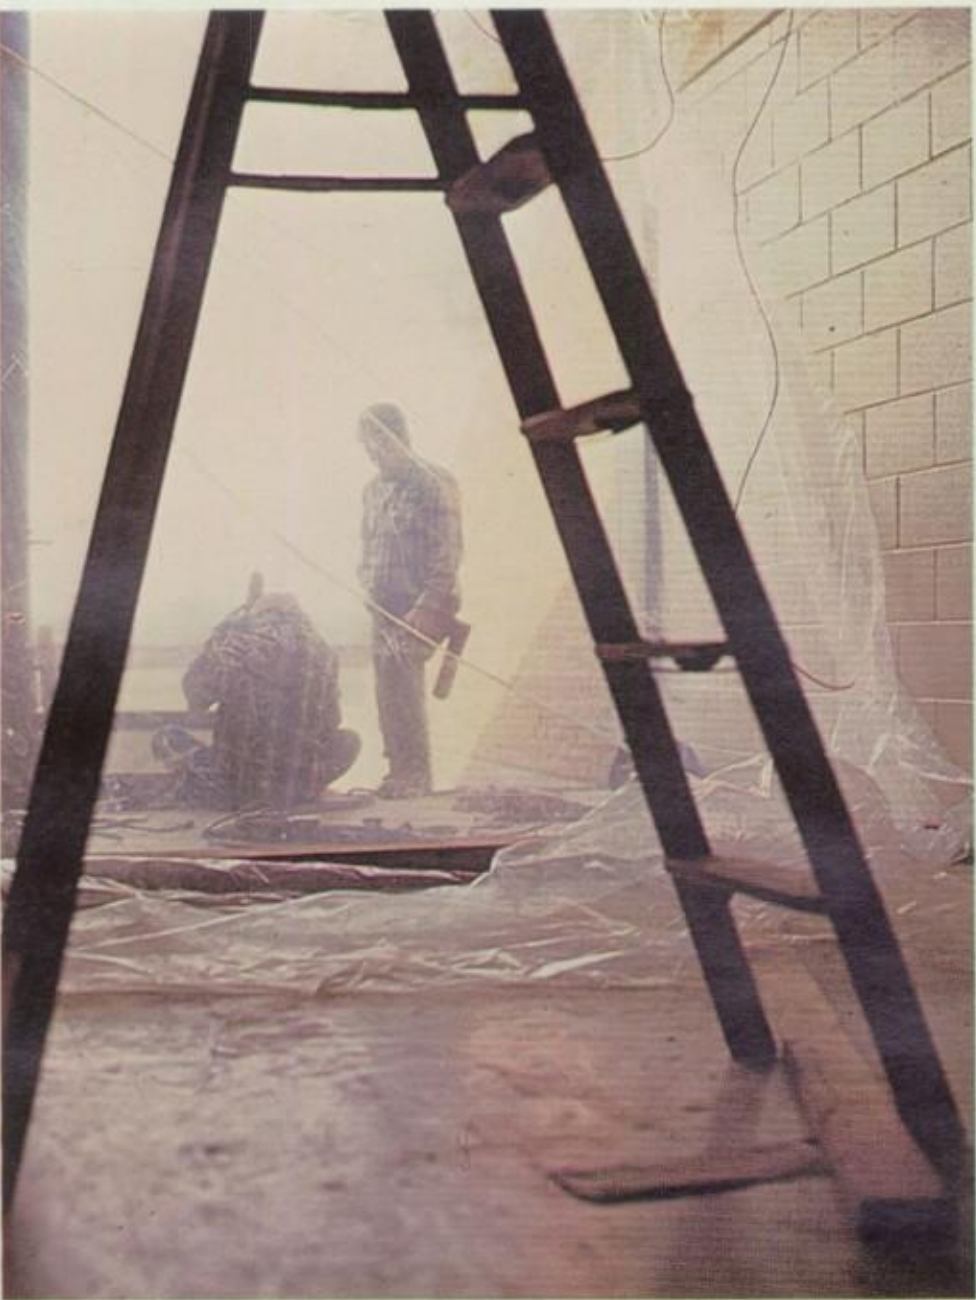

Whetstone High School

Columbus, Ohio

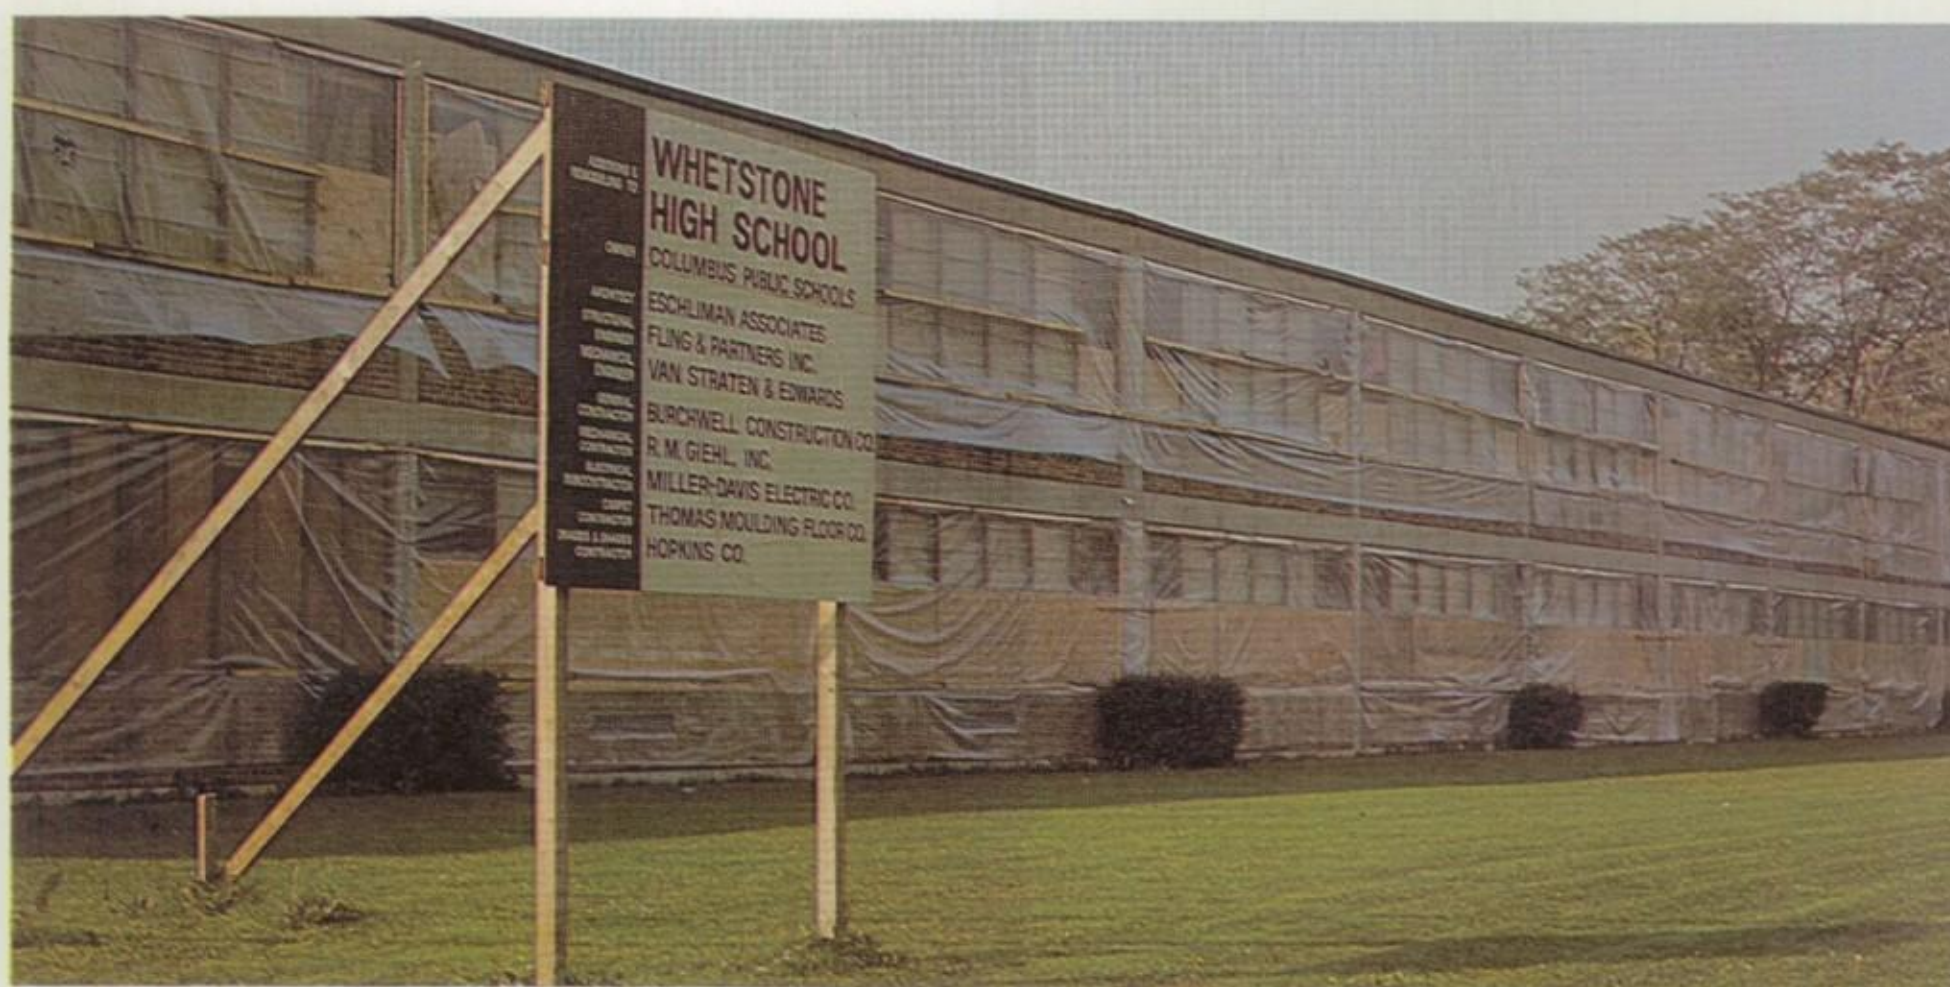

Volume XV

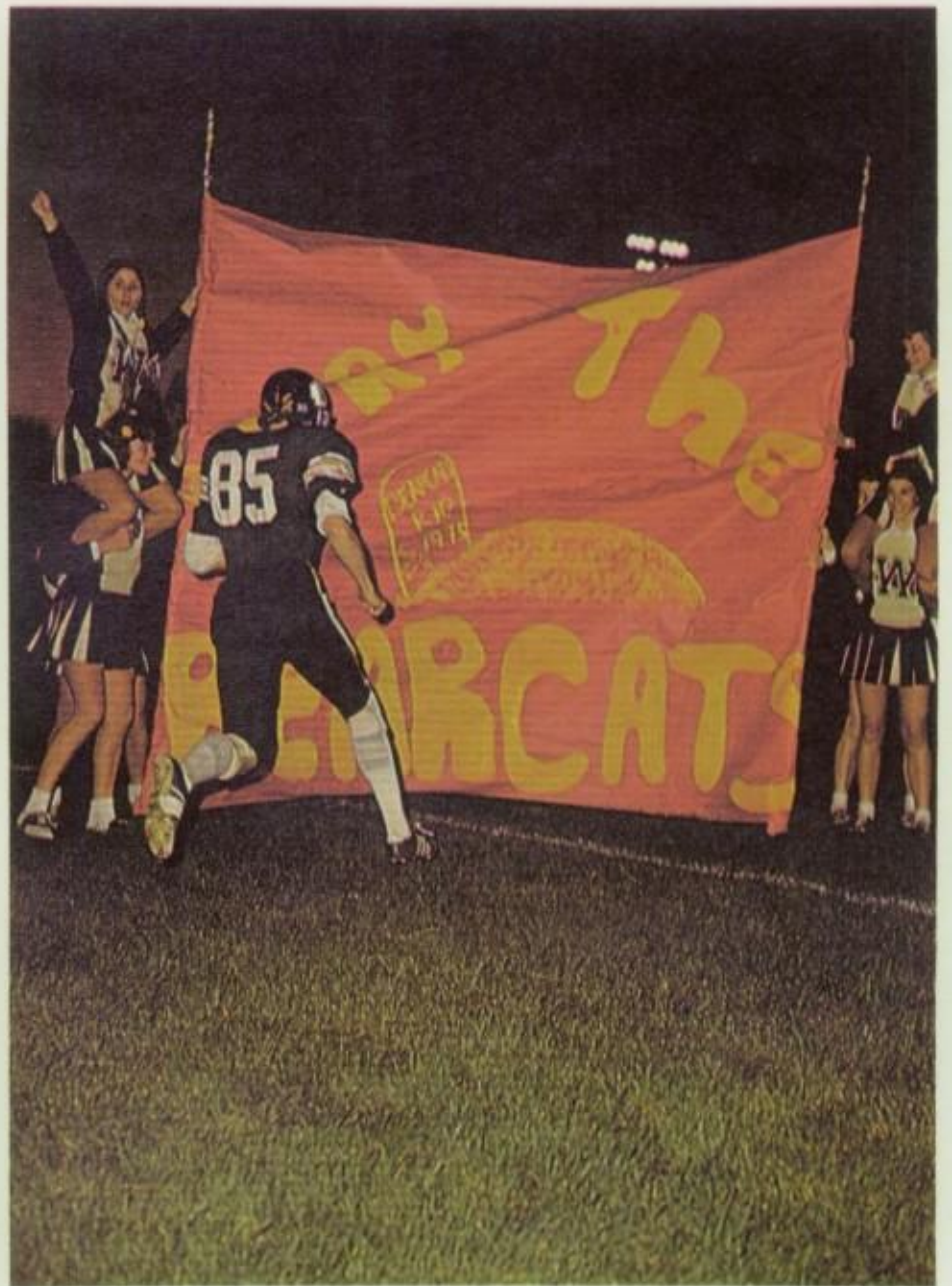

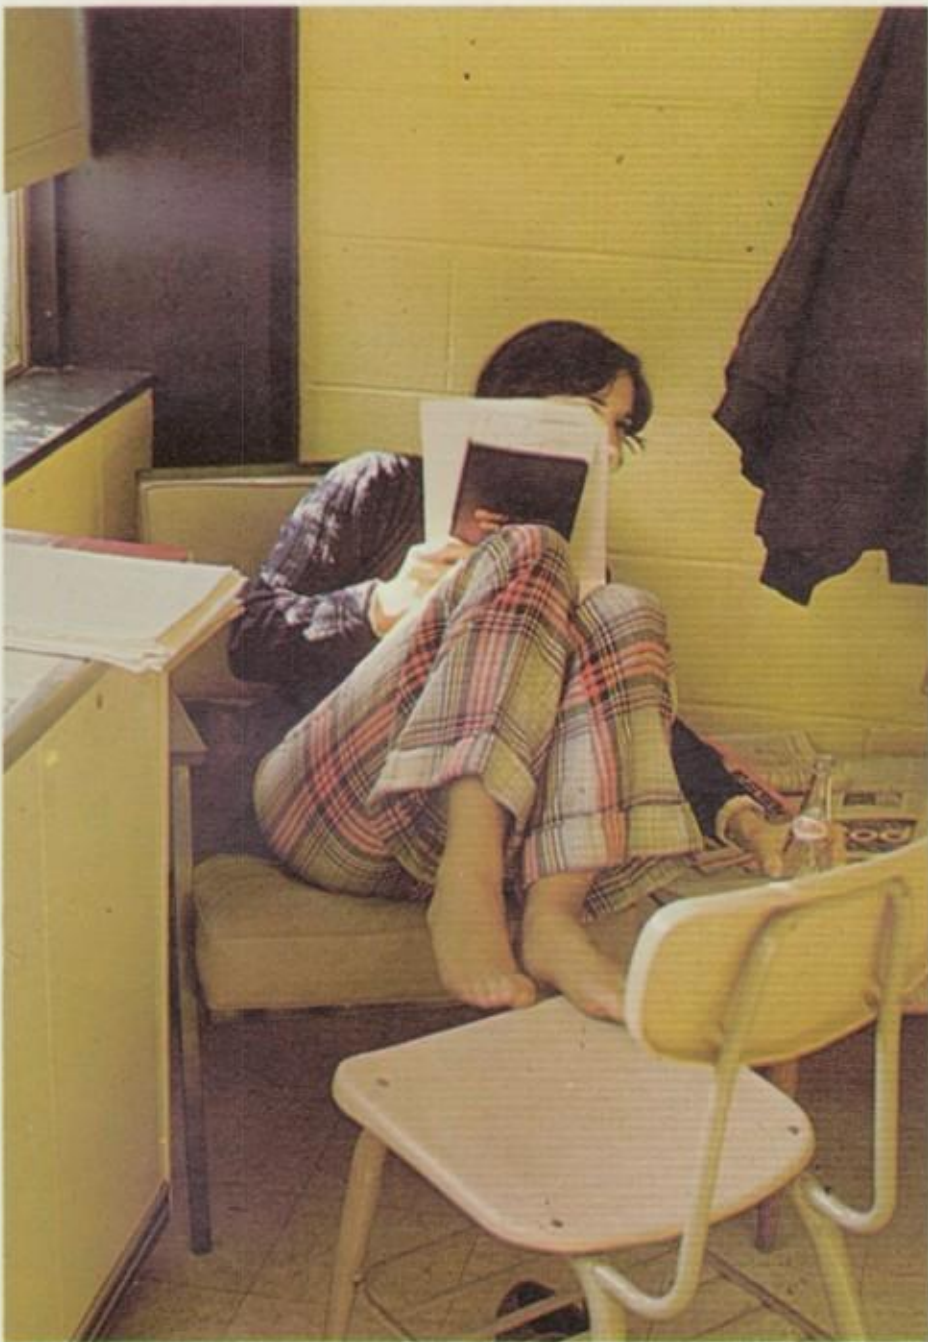

What have they done to my school? It was so different than last year. There was a new wing added — a vocational wing. The whole north side of the school was windowed in too. It made it impossible to hear anything outside. I couldn't even hear my friends go by in their cars beeping. There were construction workers all over the place, pounding nails and whistling at the girls. I felt sort of lost. But there were still some familiar things left — the parking lot was crowded beyond belief, as were the halls. The noise was still earsplitting, the food still the same (which wasn't bad, despite what everyone said.) And the teachers, they were still there helping, hassling, and leading us on to bigger and better things. All in all, I think we adjusted pretty well to our school, or maybe be it adjusted to us.

Every morning promptly at 7:45 I stumbled into Whetstone, ready to face the day. Life was pretty good. Our school spirit was high — sometimes it even seemed to get a little out of control. Maybe that's why senior homeroom was dissolved. Our teachers were understanding, and most of us even got to realize that they were regular people. Of course, there were a couple of them we had our doubts about, but that made them all the more fun to know. Our principals were nice too. We were even allowed to have a Christmas parade.

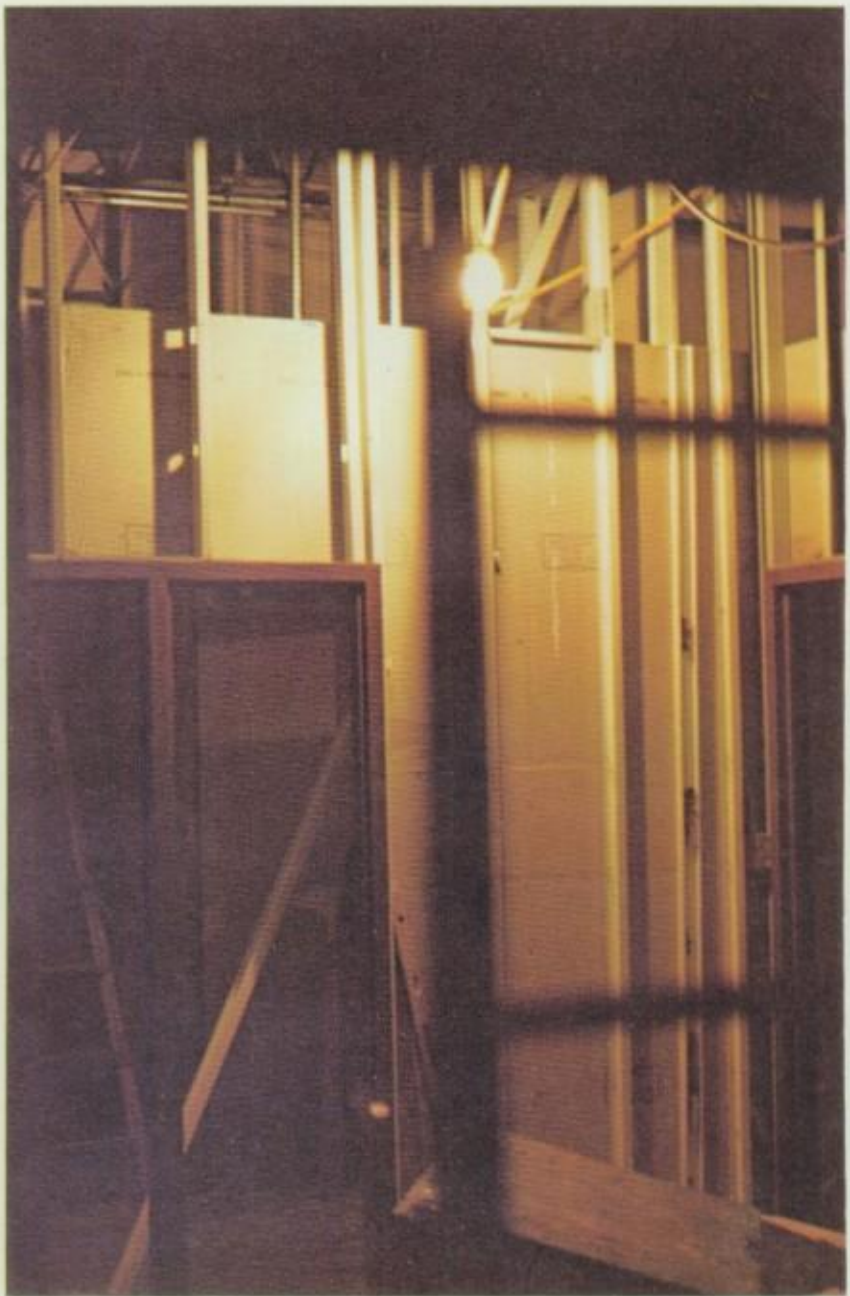

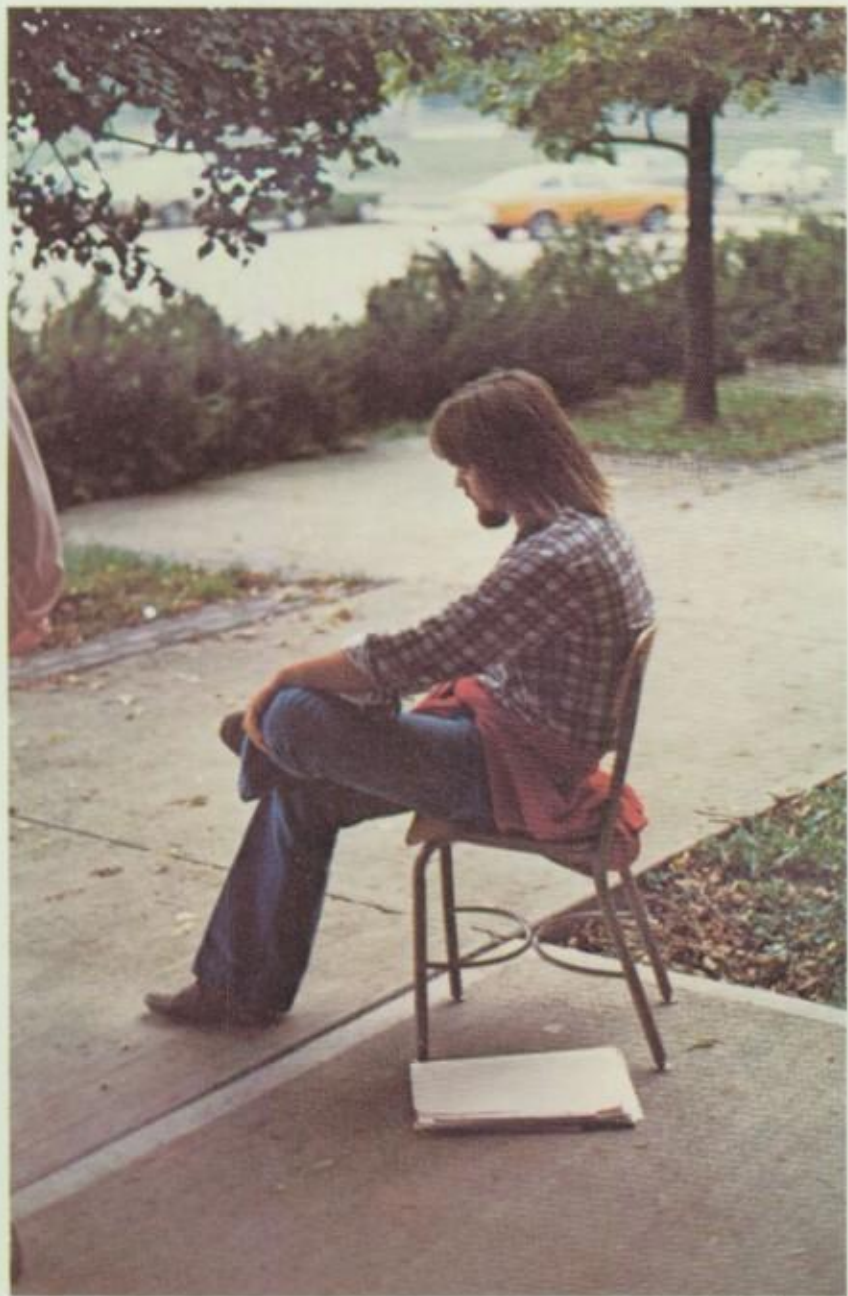

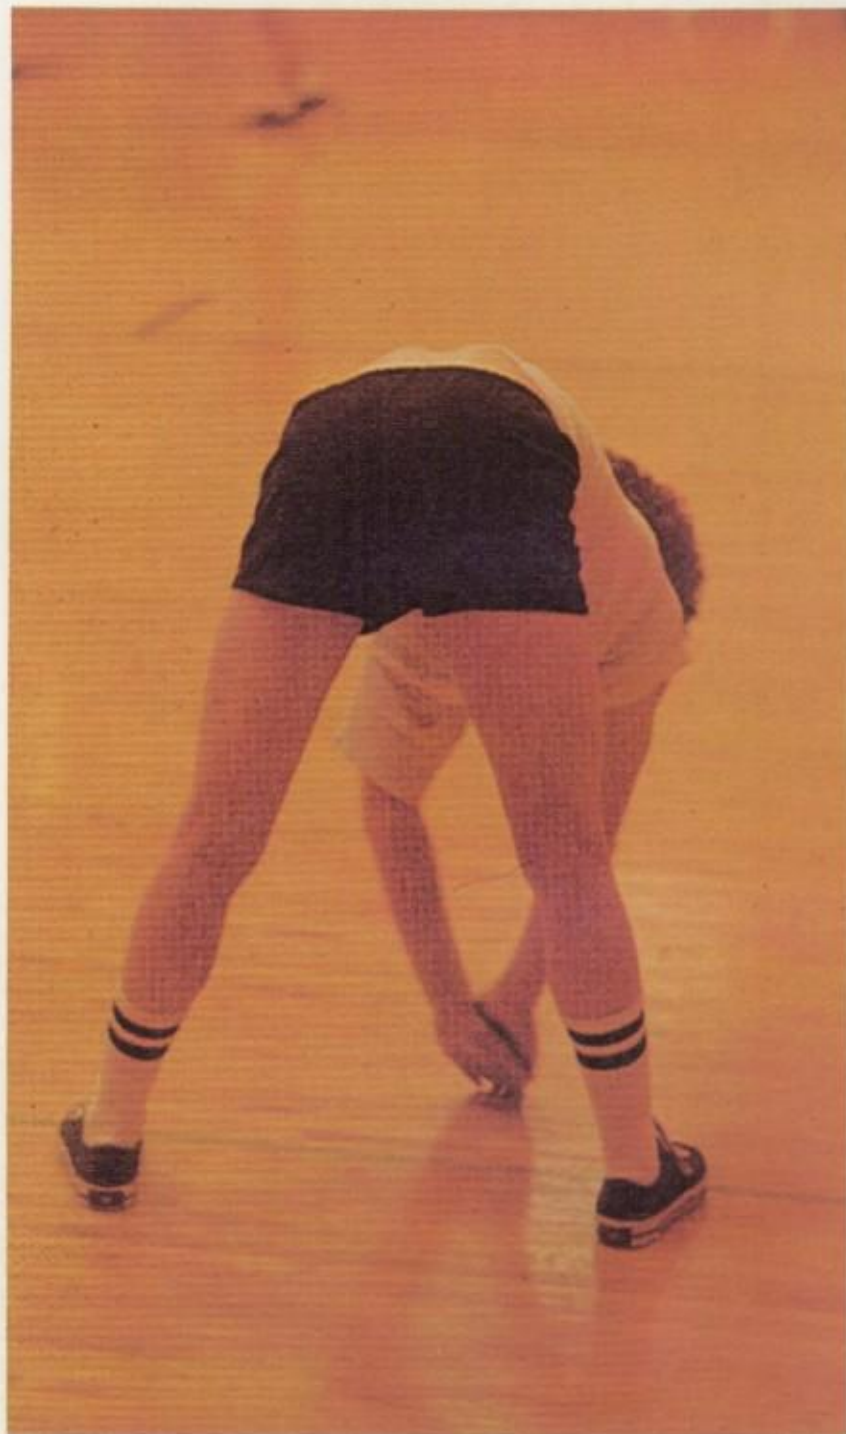

I loved those Friday night football games — being with all my friends, screaming myself hoarse and yelling for joy whether we won or lost. Who cared? I was just glad to be there. Then afterwards, we'd all go to get pizza and do some toilet papering. It was almost always cold out, and I'd be shivering, but more from excitement than cold. You know, I never got caught. The next Monday I'd casually mention to my victim, "Heard you got TPed Friday night." Then he'd reply, just as casually, "Nah, it was our neighbor!"

But sometimes, right out of nowhere came this lonely feeling. Even if I was in a group, I'd just feel alone. Those were the times I went off by myself to think. Can't say I always figured myself out, but every once in a while something would pop into my mind, and, well, I guess I grew up, just a little.

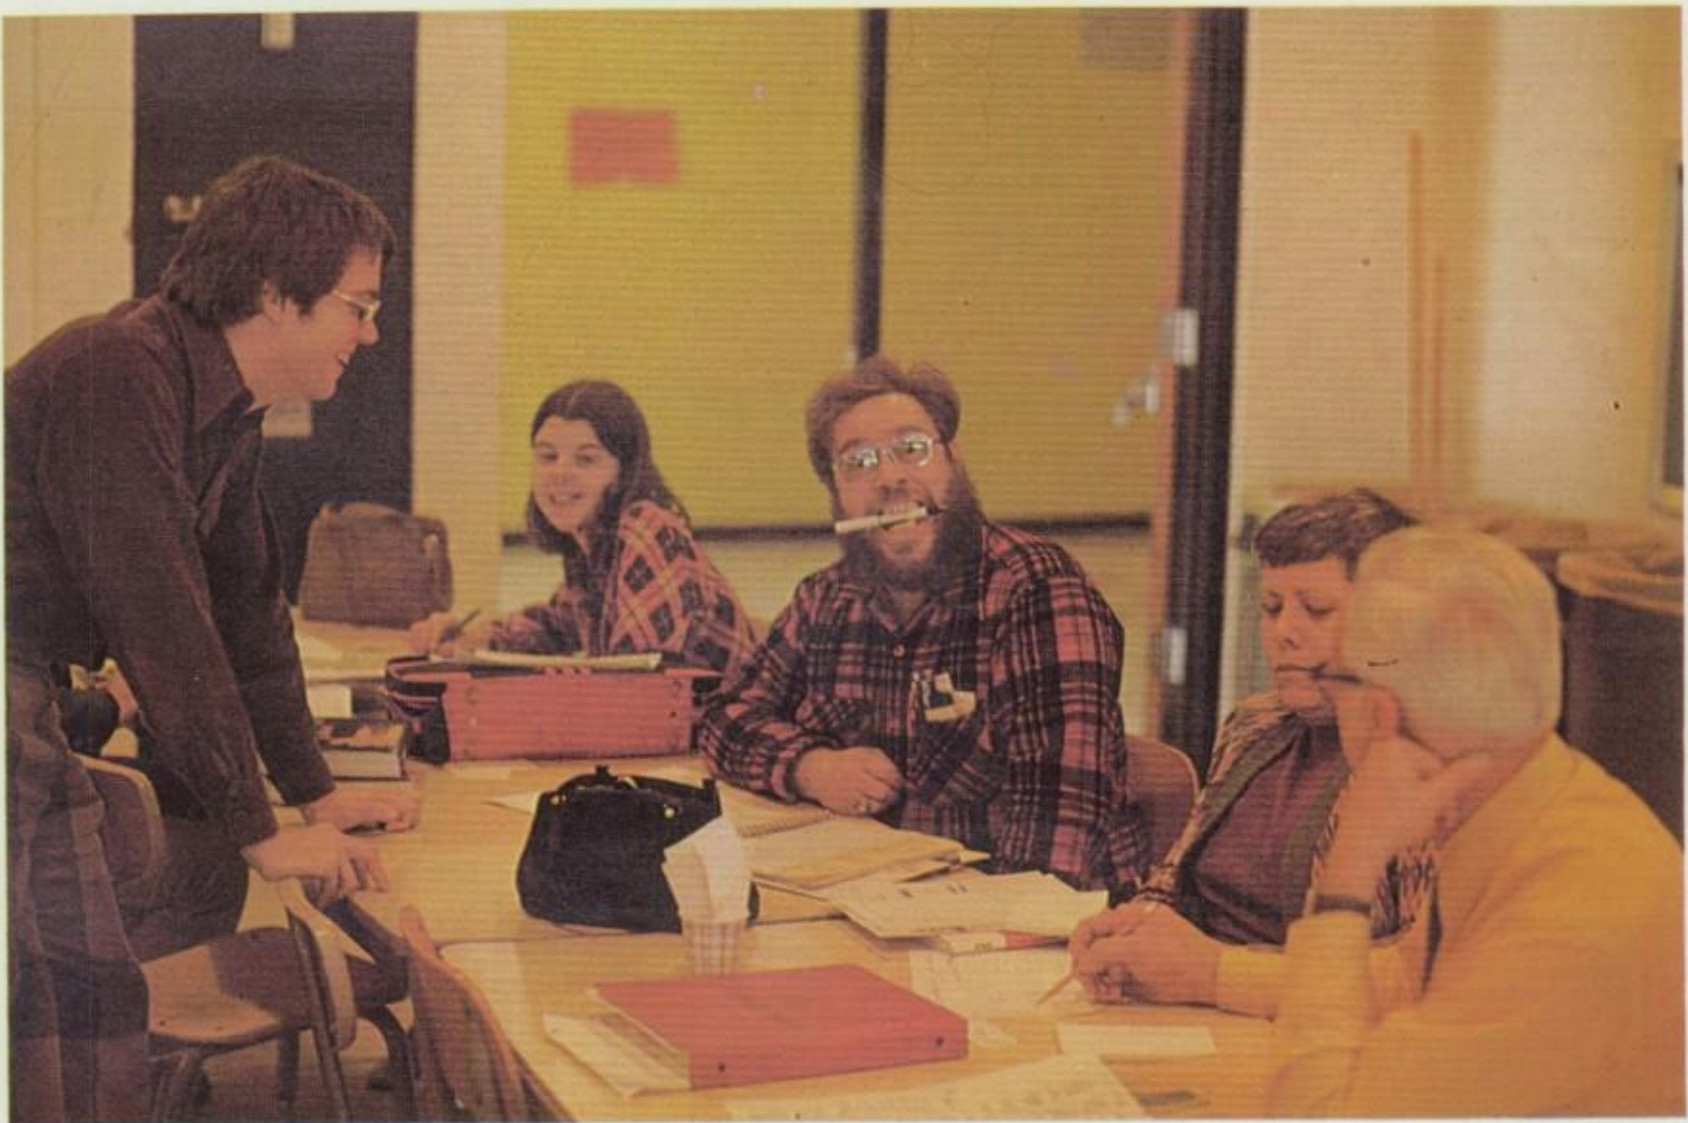

Some of us finally realized that it was time to do some things on our own. Oh-oh. How do you do that? But we kept stumbling ahead, through ACT and SAT tests, college forms and job applications. For some, it was hard to keep any semblance of sanity, and they envied the poised and confident ones of their class. But after school every student was the same. We'd all go home and collapse, mumbling, "I know there has got to be a purpose in life other than this." Whatever it was, it was out there waiting for us and we knew it. Maybe that's why we were all so scared.

1976 — I guess I didn't need to tell you what that year meant. I've never seen so much red, white, and blue in my life! Everyone was filled with some sort of spirit. Maybe the thought our country has lasted 200 years gave us courage to think we could last 20. Maybe, with spirit the "word of the day;" we thought we might as well get into the act. I wasn't sure what it was.

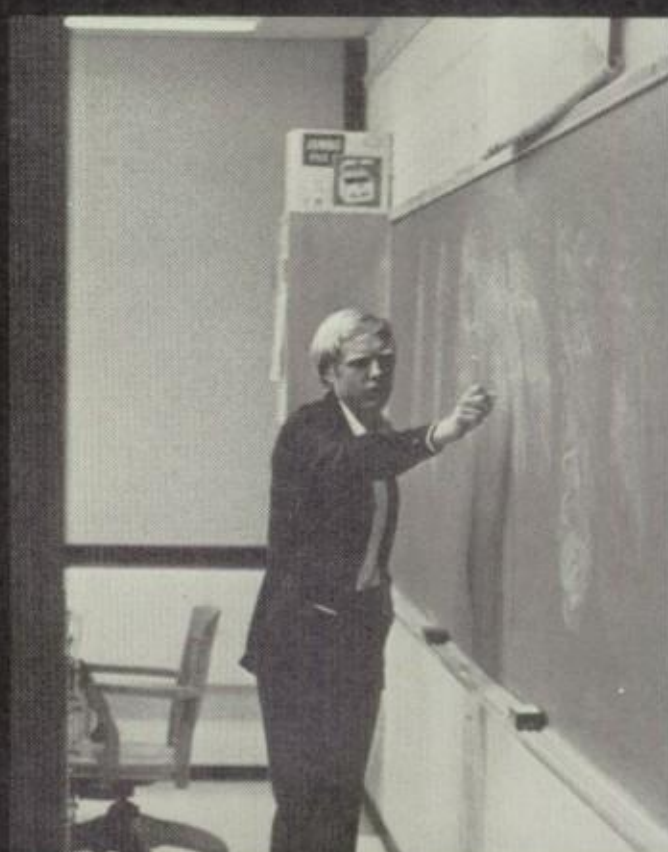

But even though we all had different methods of showing it, I'm sure we all had the Spirit of '76!

ACADEMICS

Walk Softly And Carry A Big Smile

I remember walking down the hall and seeing Mr. Furgason talking to a group of students. As I passed, I heard him saying, "Yes, I think the Bucks have it won easy." It was nice to have a principal that was friendly and understanding. He talked to the students and got know them. And he had a smile for everyone. Mr. Simmons was a nice man. He had a million dollar smile. Everybody thought it belonged in the movies. Mr. Noel wasn't seen too much in the halls. He was busy in his office, working for the benefit of the school. Altogether, we were pretty lucky we got the administrators we did.

May I Help You?

The friendliness and efficiency of the main office never failed to amaze me. They managed to keep smiling, even if sometimes it was through clenched teeth. Heaven knows they have enough to do, everything from typing memos and making telephone calls to running after kids from class to class trying to give them a phone message.

The Organizers

Clear the halls, here comes Mr. Dupre! And staggering down the hall under the weight of the activities board was Mr. Dupre. His office was a fire hazard, it was so filled with paper. He knew everything about everybody, what they did, were doing, and were going to do. Miss Thompson was a bundle of energy. Her enthusiasm rubbed off onto everybody she had acquaintance with. Perhaps their greatest accomplishment was a field trip the whole junior class took to a theater. Just imagine, a mass migration of over 400 people. That's enough to make anybody proud ... or have a nervous breakdown!

All Present And Accounted For

Where were you January 20, 1976? I walked into the attendance office and saw a pitiful sight. There was Mr. Dover cross examining some poor absentee. The boy replied with a tremor in his voice, "Would you believe I was kidnapped by some natives and taken to live in the jungle on only roots and berries?" Mr. Dover laughed and replied, "Now I've heard it all! Here's your white slip."

Whenever I had a problem, I could rely on the help of one of Whetstone's five competent guidance counselors. They managed to keep students informed about college conferences, ACT, and SAT test dates, and supplied information about college and vocational planning.

The library was a very useful place to go to when something was needed to be done. It contained many audio-visual aids, and even books. I used to go there when I needed peace and quiet. Or else when I had laryngitis.

In Five Hundred Words Or Less . . .

One of everybody's favorite endeavors in English class is the famous book report. I've done so many book reports that I hardly need to read the book to write the paper. The literature classes gave us an opportunity to read something novel. I liked the composition courses because they gave me a chance to express my views. I'll never forget my famous term paper, "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Turkeys, but were Afraid to Ask." I still can't believe I got an "A" on that!

Calculated Schizophrenia: It's The Arts!

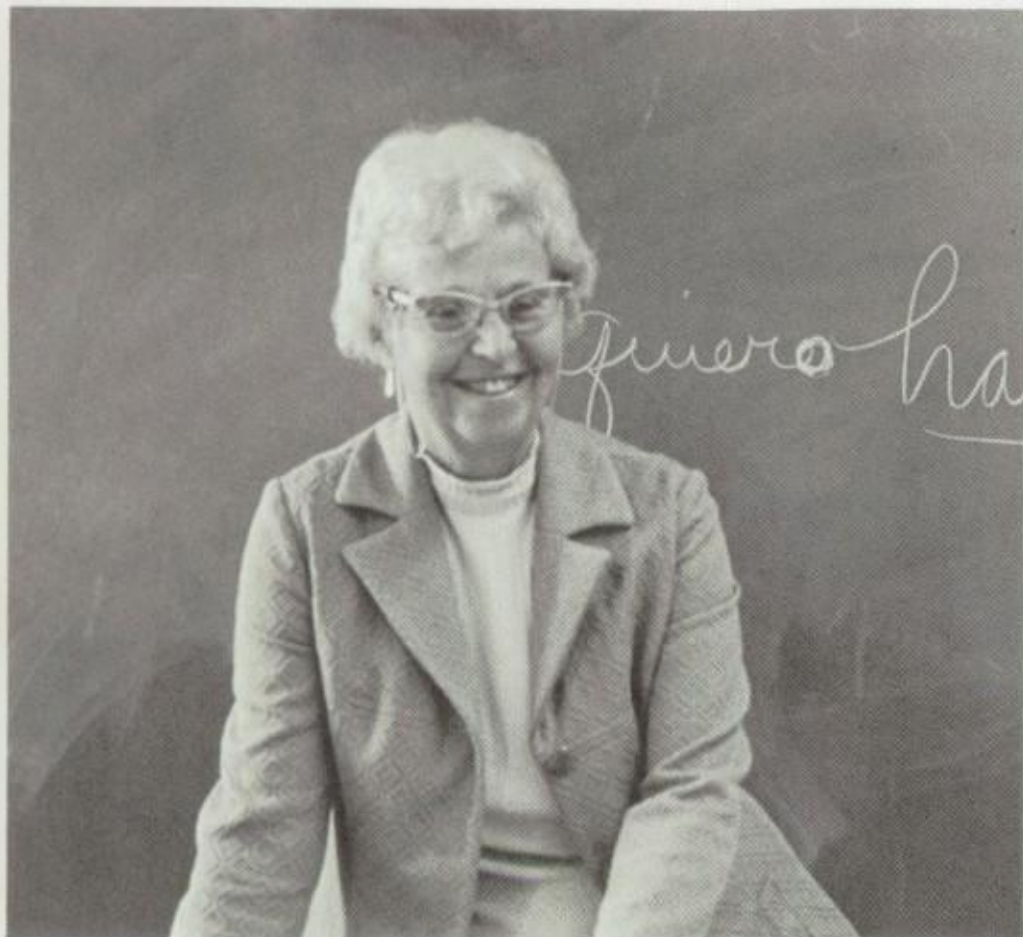

... whether 'tis nobler to give my speech unprepared or to fake laryngitis. Every speech was a nightmare for me. I could feel my socks falling down. My stomach hurt and I was stuttering. But at last it was over. Then I went home and criticized the way the president presented the State of the Union speech. In drama I learned pantomime. I went around for three days like a blooming daisy. But I really learned a lot in drama. I even felt I was good enough to try out for the school play.

Pronunciation . . . And a Mouthful of Mush

An intricate part of any foreign language is the dialogue. This is when we tried to communicate in the language we were studying. I suddenly came to the realization that I didn't know how to say very much. When I tried to say, "I'm looking for the bathroom," it came out, "I'm living in the sink." Oh well, anything was better than conjugating verbs.

Two Hundred Years Ago Today — Forty Two Minutes Later

Two Hundred Years Ago Today ... the history department was busy thinking up ways to aggravate and confuse students. But seriously, folks ... our history department was a great bunch of guys. By the time we were seniors, we knew about everything from Afghanistan to Porkopolis, we could recite the Declaration of Independence backwards, and knew exactly how to make the stock market crash.

Health And Driving Just Don't Mix

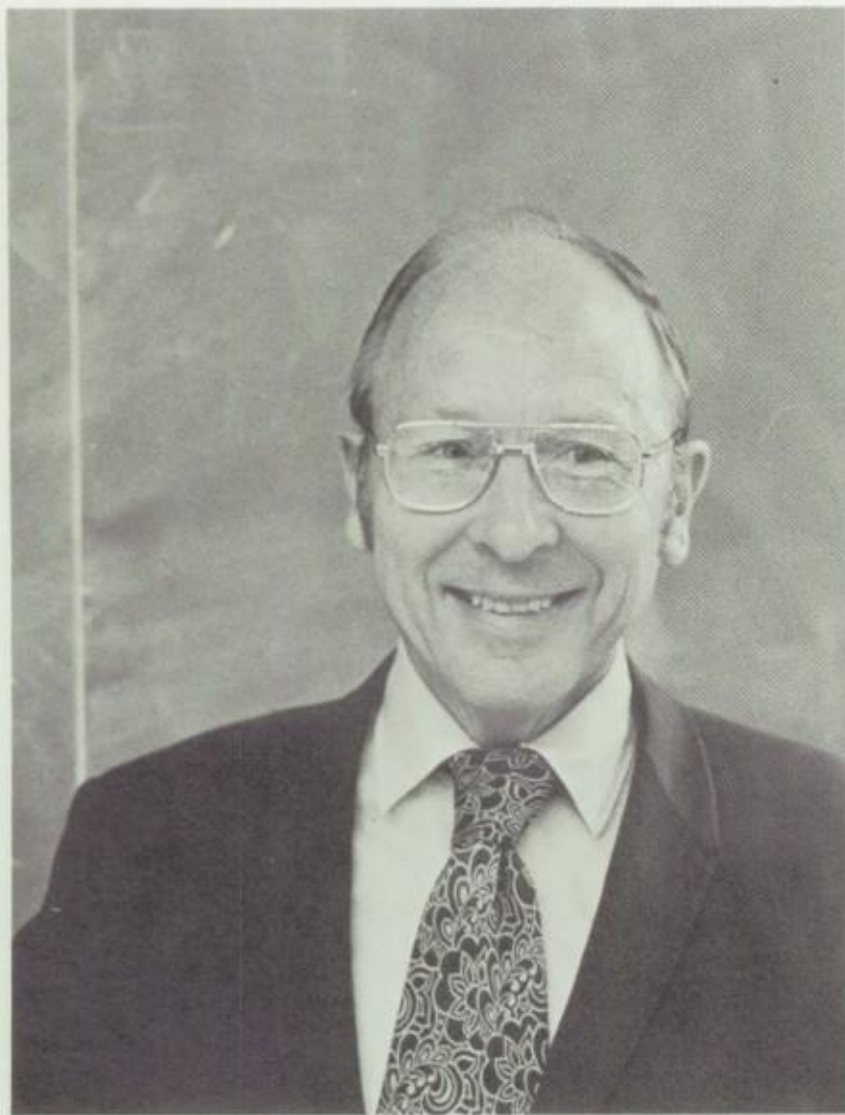

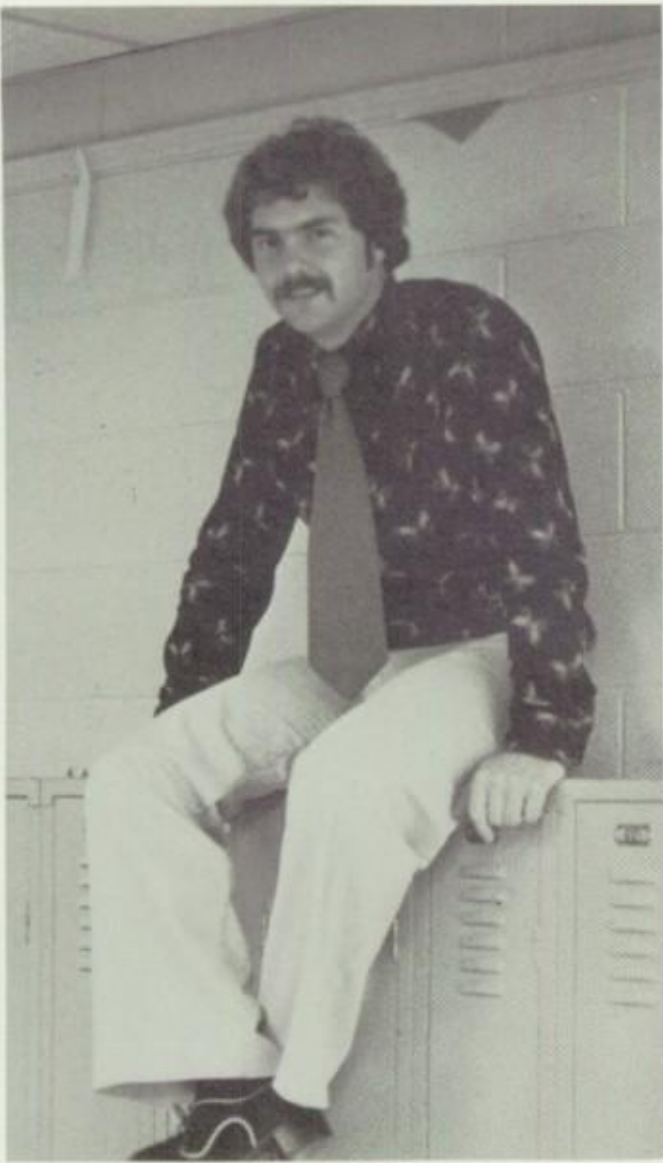

I took drivers ed in the winter. Every morning I would wake up and pray it wasn't raining or snowing. The hardest part about driving was having the teacher sitting beside you with clenched teeth and eyes shut, while all the while he kept saying, "You're doing great!" Right after driver's ed, I had health. Do you think someone was trying to tell me something? I really enjoyed health though. All the movies showing death and decay were really nice to see before lunch. When the police came to talk about drug use, they brought some pot incense and burned it. After that, some of the strangest people wandered in.

Math Students Learn All Angles

Those awful math tests! I'd always come up with three different answers for the same problem! On one test, we had to interpolate trigonometric logarithms from a table in the textbook. Let's see ... you find the hyperbolic tangent's log, divide by two, plug it into the quadratic formula ... then give up and pray that the teacher will give you partial credit.

Successful Experiment Equals 10% Effort, 90% Luck

Lab days were the most memorable times in science. I'll never forget the time in Biology class when the boys dressed the skeleton up, or when we mixed together some chemicals during a chemistry lab and produced that strange, bubbling concoction! Then there was the day we played with our rubber duckies in the ripple tanks in physics class. Some people just never grow up!

Oh, To Be Co-Ordinated

Gym was a greatly appreciated break from the tedium of schoolwork. I became a quick change artist over the course of two years. I had exactly three minutes to jump out of my "civilian" clothes and into my clammy gym outfit. The activities were interesting too, especially when we made up the rules. All in all, gym gave us a chance to burn our extra energy off.

It Takes a Steady Hand

I decided to become a "Jack of all trades" and try each of the industrial arts classes. In drafting I couldn't draw a fine line with my purple crayon. In electricity, I short circuited not only my project, but the whole west end of Columbus. In metal shop I broke seven drill bits. In wood my best project was making a toothpick. I guess I turned out to be more of a "Jack" than I thought.

Housekeeping Hint: Stay Out of the Kitchen

There are only two "womanly" professions I cannot do. They are cooking and sewing. The first day of cooking, we made pizza. My crust was neither thin and crispy or thick and chewy. It was hilly and lumpy. It looked like a replica of a Revolutionary War battle scene. It sort of tasted like it too. In sewing I made a dress. It was supposed to be close fitting, but by the time I was done, the only thing it fit was a Barbie doll. After those two classes I vowed I would only marry someone who knew how to cook, and didn't mind me not being able to sew, or someone who took these courses himself in High School.

A Study In Self Discipline

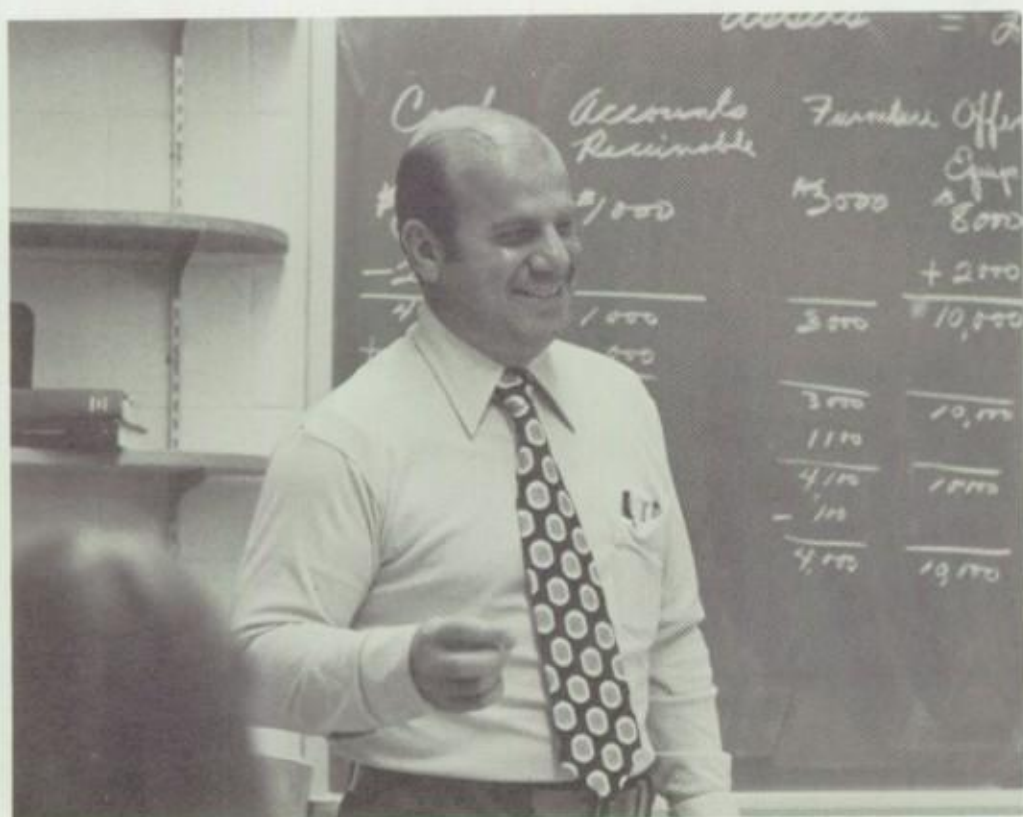

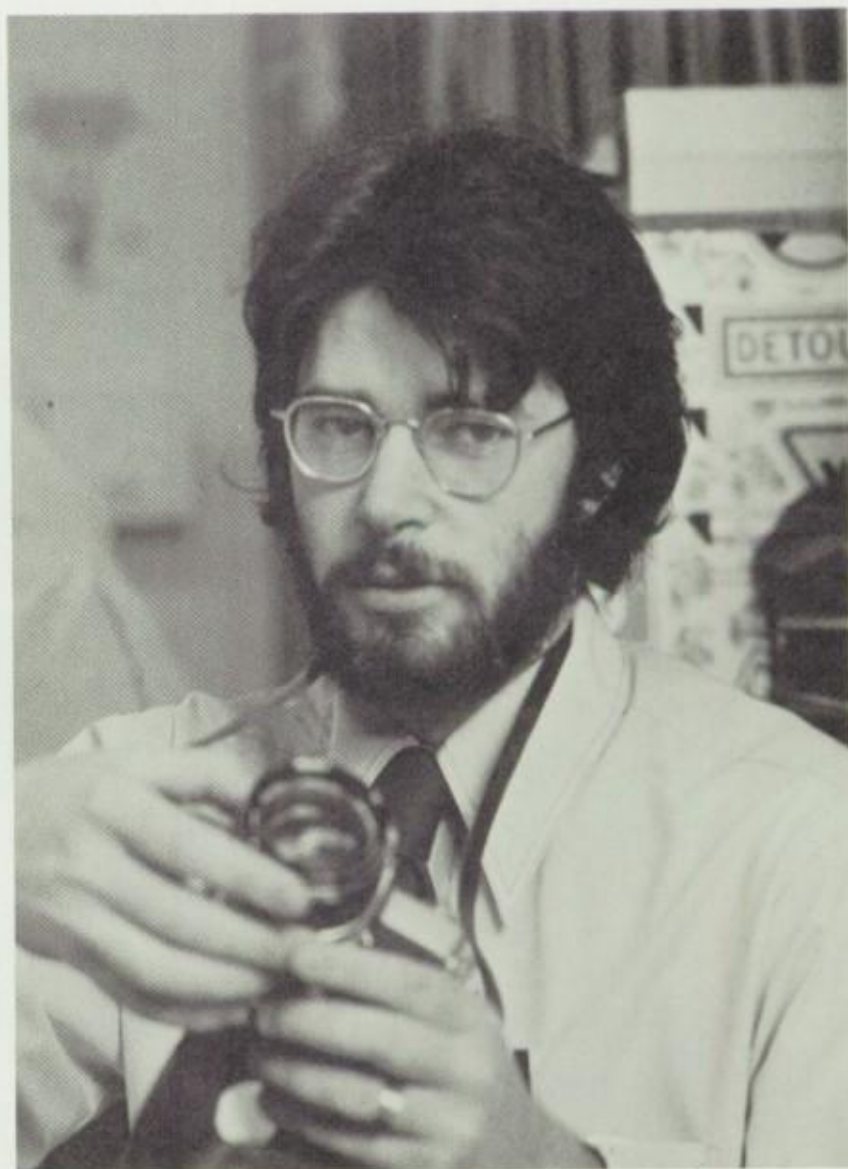

It was fun to be in the music groups. Actually, it was a lot of hard work. In marching band, we marched every week from the beginning of July to the end of November. Then there were the 8:00 rehearsals every morning just before contest. That was just too early to be playing coherently. The choir and ensemble were always going somewhere. We went to conventions, contests, even Mer-shon. It was kind of scary for me. I'm tall and afraid of heights. If I'd have looked down, that would have been it. I became somewhat of an artist, under the direction of Mr. Strother. I got so good, I could paint-by-number without going out of the lines!

Business Classes Appreciated By Students

The business classes at Whetstone were reputed to be the best in Columbus. It prepared students for secretarial work, accounting jobs and in many other areas of the business world. These students will have a jump on the others in terms of a job once they graduate.

The Well Being Of Every Student Depends On These People

These groups we couldn't have done without. The lunchroom ladies spent their morning preparing sustenance to last us through the afternoon. The Audio-Visual crew was always there to show us educational, if not always interesting movies. Miss Pollock led the Computer Supported Instruction classes.

If You're Beyond Help

The nurse cured stomach aches and the treasurer gave them. There was nothing like her coming up and telling you that you were $50 short from what you reported you turned in. The nurse told you to lay down and relax, while all the while you were laying there going, "Where did I put that money?"

Activities

Involvement In School Activities Satisfying

Student Council gave students an opportunity to be represented in school and have a say in the policies. I remember all those 4th period meetings every Thursday. We made some new decisions like playing music in the halls once a week, visiting nursing homes at Christmas, and planning dances. Mrs. Bolin was an easy person to work with. She was liberal and listened to our ideas. Everyone involved in Student Council seemed to be close to one another. It was also satisfying to be involved in and contribute to the school, rather than just exist there.

Underclass Gets Cans Kicked

— Seniors Can Do!

The annual can drive held in November was a big success. The seniors got their cans in gear and won the contest, with over 4000 cans. The sophomores and juniors put up an admirable fight, however. The day of the drive, there was hardly any floor visible. I almost tripped over a row of cans as I left the office one morning. The point of the whole thing was to see which class won with the most cans. Most of us were aware, though, of what they were for. We at Whetstone were very lucky to be where we were. The cans were for people who were not as lucky.

Teri Rothermund and John Fitzpatrick display one of many cans of food the seniors collected to help feed the needy.

Experience In Gov't

Six students from Whetstone High were chosen to participate in Buckeye Boy's or Girl's State. During the time they spent there, a student government was set up. People ran for certain government positions. It was a prime learning experience in democracy. Chris Howard was chosen for Student Interest Forum. She attended regular school board meetings and voiced the school's opinions on certain matters. It was an effort to get the student's view presented to the board of education.

Both activities were great learning experiences for the participants. Not only did they learn about democracy, they learned how to relate to different types of people.

Artists' Talents Pooled

The Photo Club wasn't really a club this year. They were a class. Each student was responsible of turning in a certain number of pictures a six weeks. Some of the members also contributed work to Folio, the school magazine, and were responsible for some of the work shown in this book. Art Club turned out some true masterpieces. They had speakers come in and talk to them on techniques. They even made a field trip to the art museum this year. The main purpose of this club was to mass produce future Van Goghs.

These Four Young People Are Here To Prove . . .

. . . that they're In the Know! Our four "brainchildren" defeated North High School earlier in the year by a huge amount. They practiced feverishly until February, when they lost by a slim margin to Grove City. All in all, it was a pretty good year for them. There was only one veteran player, but the newcomers filled in very well and gave strong performances. Jon Zilber was chosen to represent Whetstone on the North All-Star team. He gave some advice to all those who are interested in joining the team next year. One must have trigger-quick reactions, a good strong voice, and know the difference between Beethoven and Botticelli.

Exploring The Wilds And The World Of Kings

Science Club was for those who loved nature. People in the club studied different types of flora and fauna. They examined them under microscopes and studied them in their natural habitat. They also took care of the nature around school. One student brought in baby opossums whose mother had died. Some of the club members took one home to care for. At last report there were still a couple living.

Chess Club was famed for their intensely intellectual moves. The members of this club had to have a great deal of concentration and patience, which most of them did. Participation Is The First Step To Success

Anglophiles were people who studied the customs and culture of England. Miss Thompson was the advisor. I heard this group spent much time planning different ways to foil the Bicentennial festival, such as imposing taxes, closing down the parking lot for all incoming traffic, and scheming how to win the Battle of Bunker Hill. Bookroom people were responsible for making sure that every class got their required books. They also guarded all the lost books. Amateur Radio Club members spent much of their time preparing for the FCC test in order to become full-fledged ham radio operators.

Finding Friends From Far Away

Sharyn Whyte and Marisol Pastor were the AFS exchange students this year. Sharyn was from Australia and Marisol was from Panama. Life in the United States was very interesting for them. It was noticed that both girls slowly became "Americanized." One of the hardest things to learn was the slang. The first time someone talked about cutting class, they were quite bewildered. But both girls felt that living in the U.S. was good for them. They now knew how another country lived, their customs, fads, etc. It might have also served to make them more appreciative of their own country.

Future Contributors To Society

3rd World and Future Career Women were new clubs at Whetstone. A popular misconception was that 3rd World was for minorities only. This was not true. Any one could join 3rd World. Its main purpose was to study minorities, their problems and accomplishments. Members of FCW studied women in careers that are man-oriented. They discussed problems that women encountered, and ways to combat them.

Future Homemakers of America prepared themselves to make good housewives. They studied basic techniques on how to save money in the house, work on budgets, etc. While they were busy scrimping and saving, Future Secretaries of America were busy scratching and scrawling. They practiced shorthand, typing, etc., in an effort to improve their skills.

It's A Small World

Some of the best times in the language clubs were banquets. French and Spanish clubs held several. French club went to a banquet at Brookhaven, which was quite nice. It was later learned that German club did not exist. It seemed someone just passed out slips to various and sundry people who wanted them.

Winter Wonderland

Ski Club was one of the most popular in the school. Over 200 people were members. Every Wednesday they possibly could, the whole club would pack up and take off in buses. Then they would return after about three or four hours of skiing. There was one time the buses got stuck and didn't make it home until 3:30 in the morning. Needless to say, our parents weren't too happy about that. But ski club was a very fun club to belong to. After all, where else can you have good clean fun and be with all your friends at the same time?

Elegant Equestrians, Gallant Girls

Horseback riding club gave people a chance to spend their afternoons on the back of a horse while talking to their friends. Mr. Wrobbel was the advisor of this club. The members not only had fun, they helped each other improve too.

GAA explored many different sports such as softball, basketball, tennis, and many others. They competed against themselves for a big reward . . . enjoyment.

Dedication Beyond The Line Of Duty

One, two, three, four. Tweet, tweet, tweet, tweet. During the summer months, that was a very familiar sound in and around Whetstone. The marching band started their work in early July, and ended in late November. The time in between, they alternately sweltered or froze, got parched or soaked. There was no happy medium. But these people marched on, and produced one of the best sounds Whetstone ever heard.

The Cream Of The Crop

Who are those dashing girls in that blazing blue? The ensemble! Our ensemble was the best around. Earlier in the year, they performed a commissioned piece called Earth Sky Sea Trees Birds House Beasts Flowers. It was different from anything they'd ever performed. All agreed that it certainly was a learning experience.

The choir officers were organizers. They spent a lot of time taking ticket money, keeping attendance records and music straight, and expediting. These students were responsible for keeping choir the well-oiled machine it was.

Next Stop . . . Broadway!

"Inherit The Wind" was the fall play. This was the dramatization of the Scopes "monkey" trial. The scenery was excellently done. It alternated between a courtroom, and a typical small-town court-house and park.

CAST LIST

MATTHEW HARRISON BRADY..... James Perine
HENRY DRUMMOND..... Fritz Kuhn
BERTRAM CATES..... Jim Gunderman
RACHAEL BROWN Robin Christopherson
MR. GOODFELLOW..... Gordon Markley
REV. JEREMIAH BROWN..... Joel Miller
DUNLAP..... Joel Tatom
MR. BANNISTER..... Joe Legner
E. K. HORNBECK..... Jon Zilber

The student director was Ann Agner. Mrs. Curry was the director. Both agreed the play was a great success. It was considered to be a rather difficult play for a high school cast to present.

The Spring play was a marker in Whetstone's dramatic presentations. It was compiled by students and teachers. A group consisting of Jon Zilber, Jim Perine, Robbie Babcock, Ms. Curry, and Mrs. King compiled plays in order to present the highlights of the last 200 years. Thoreau made an appearance in the guise of Alex Shiblaq.

There were several sets used throughout the play. While one set was being used in one corner of the stage, the other side of the stage was being torn down and set up differently. The high point of the play was when the chandelier fell unexpectedly and shattered all over the stage. The spring play was an experiment using different stage techniques and giving people multiple roles. Since it was also bi-centennial, it fit the year to a tee.

It was Homecoming night, and excitement and expectation was in the air. Everyone waited tensely. Then, great shouts broke out, and Andrea was seen walking down the aisle. That was the motion for the dance to start. The girls were adorned in lace and ribbon, and looked almost unearthly. The guys looked very neat and older than usual. For one night, there was a bit of heaven at Whetstone.

Rebirth Of The Greasy Kid Stuff

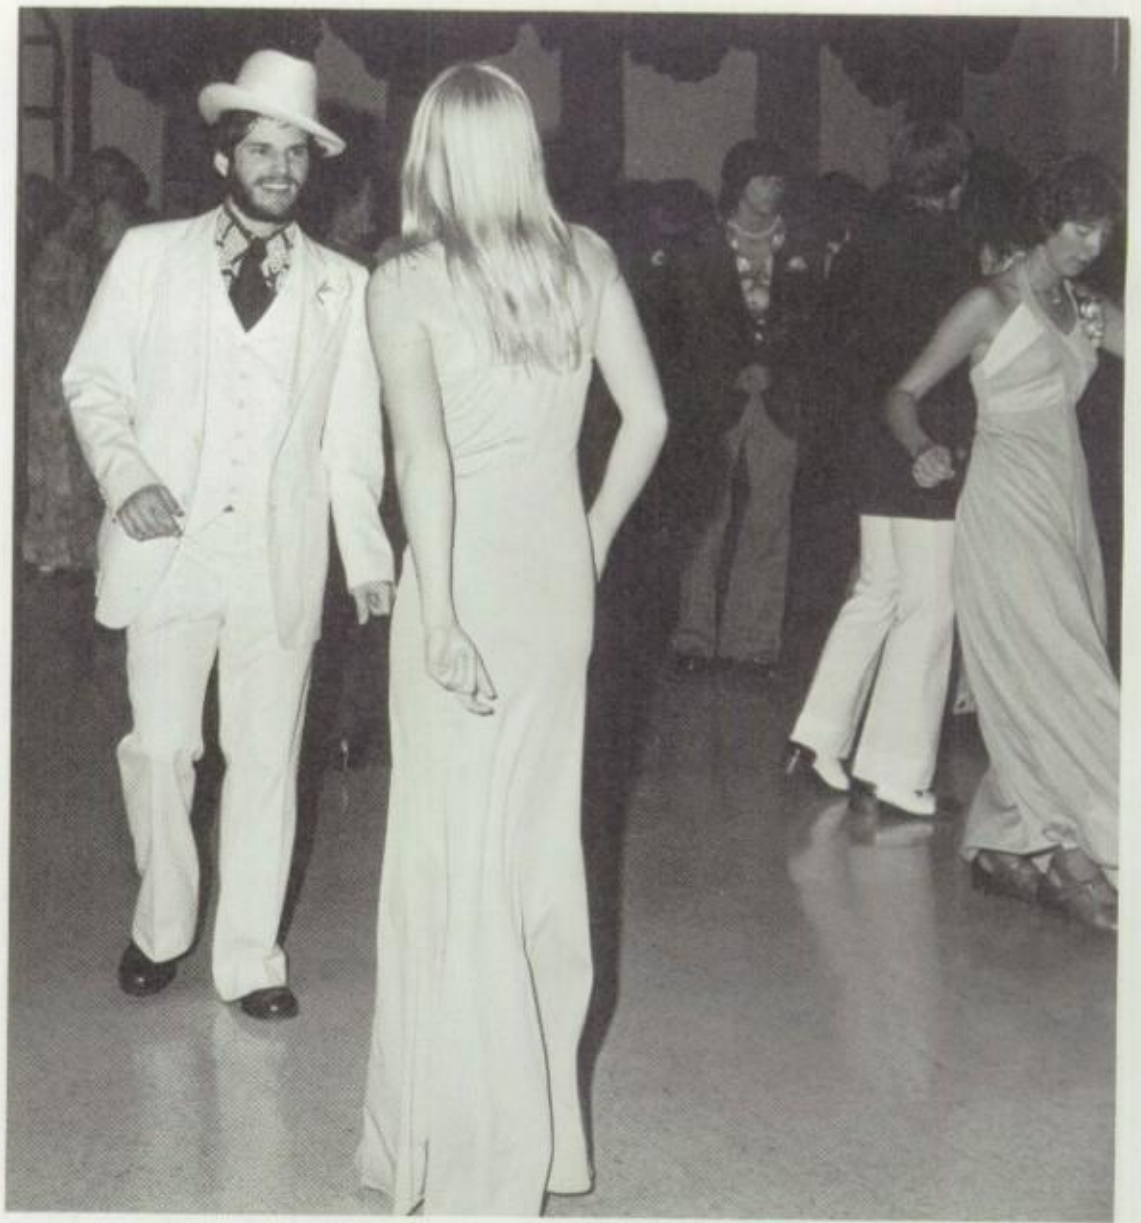

If anyone had peeked in the windows of Whetstone earlier in the year, he would have probably fainted. He would have beheld a group of guys with slicked back hair and peg-legged jeans. He would have seen the reincarnation of the pigtail and bobby socks. Sock Hops gave the students an opportunity to have an experience not unlike that of their parents' teen-age days. For once parents and children would have something to talk about. The typical student would come home and say, "Boy, that was really cool, those cats really were hot tonite." Their parents would reply, "Yes, in my day they were really camp, those cats really were hot back then." Just goes to show how big the communication gap really is.

A Night To Remember

At right, Kari Churtz and the king, Mike Borelli.

Ah the joys of women's lib. If only she would have paid for the dinner. When else can a man be treated as a King, complete with jeweled crown, sparkling throne, and lovely ladies all around him? Yes, it truly was a night to remember. It was one of the boys' favorite dances, because they are relieved of the duty of finding a date. Instead they all sat around and speculated as to who will ask them, and squealed with delight when they finally were asked.

Extra! Extra! Read all about it! Where else could one find pre-puberty pictures of our favorite adults, articles about nose shadow, or stereo headlines (Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman, A Review, A Review)? Where else? Scout! Scout was the school newspaper. It published many interesting and controversial stories about school and school-related topics. It also provided entertainment for all the poor students sitting in study hall cooling their minds.

When All Else Fails, Go Fly A Trike

This year's Legend staff had a hard way to go. Our yearbook seemed to fall apart in front of their eyes. But somehow the staff picked up the pieces and managed to perform miracles. The yearbook actually worked out well, thanks to all the staff members who stayed up nights working on lay-out, cut classes to type copy, and neglected to eat lunch to crop pictures. When strangers would enter 211B, they seldom came out unchanged. Despite the fact it was a little off-color, I bet more work got done there than just about anywhere else in the whole school. But anyway, this year's Legend staff were a bunch of hard working individuals, and because of, or in spite of them, you are reading this publication right now.

During particularly frustrating moments, the "Spirit of Cowtown" was a gleaming symbol of hope.

Curriculum

Learning The King's English And The Czar's Russian

There were many English courses at Whetstone, in an attempt to interest just about everyone in something. Sophomores started out taking an English course dealing basically with English grammar. But when they hit their junior year, the field was limitless. There were composition courses such as journalism, basic and advanced comp, Expo and Research, and Nature of Language.

The journalism classes were responsible for the stories that were published in the Scout. They had to track down information all over the school. There were also guest speakers. They were even visited by TV-4 sports-caster Jimmy Crum.

Probably one of the most popular classes was "Nature of Langham." Mr. Langham managed to teach kids important words while giving them nonsensical information to remember them by. And the funny thing was that most people did remember those words.

There were also many and diverse literature classes. For the Bicentennially minded, there were British Lit and American Authors. For those who liked to read, but had little time for it, there was Reading For Individual Pleasure. This class gave students 40 minutes a day for reading the book of his choice. Foundations of Western Thought was devoted to the study of Greek and Roman Literature, and the Bible as Literature. There were frequent discourses and variances of opinion, but that only served to make the class more interesting.

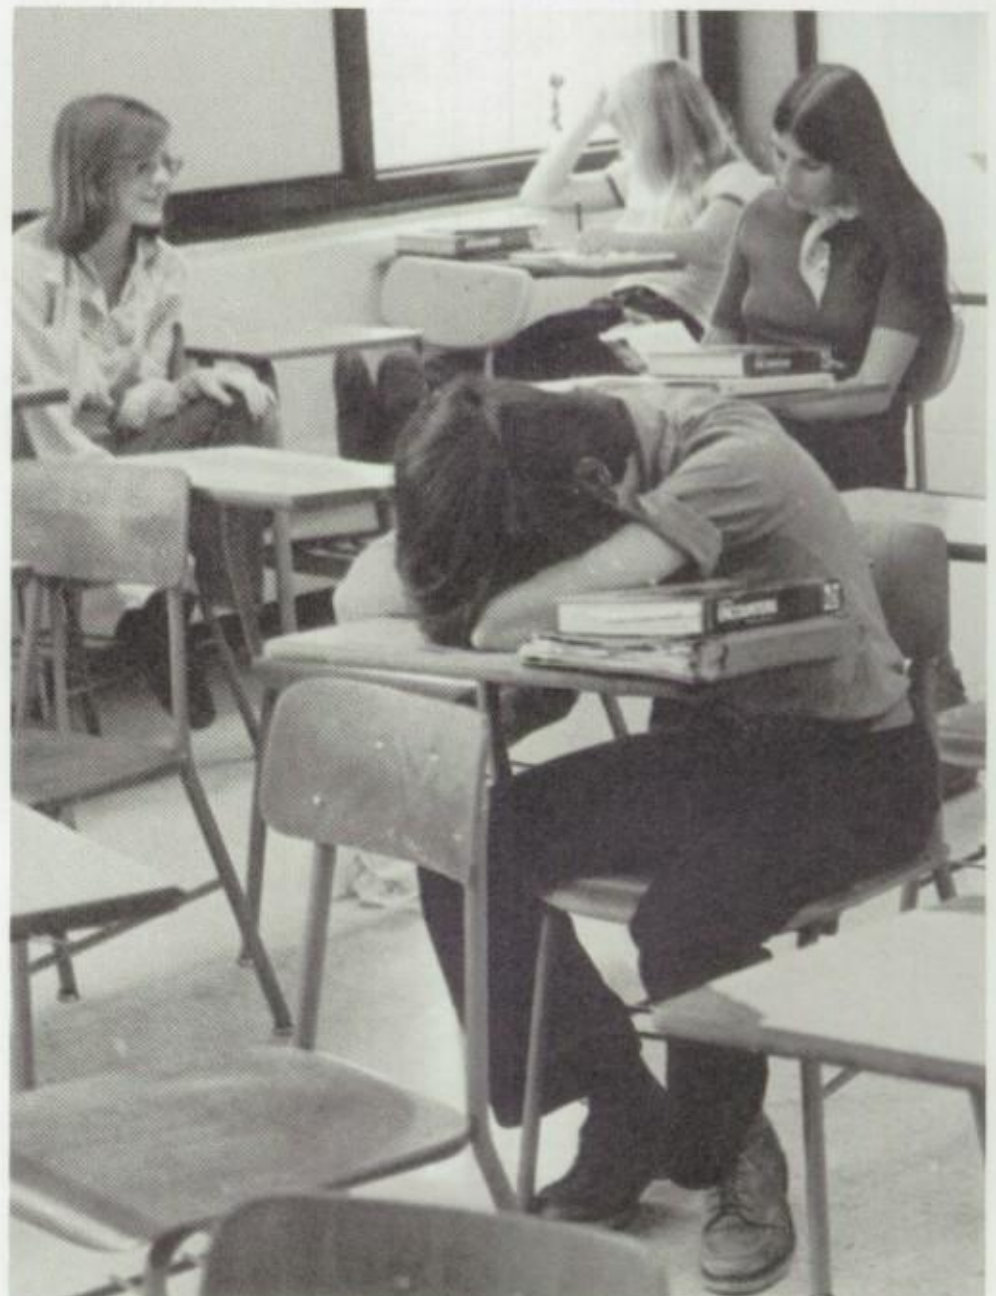

For future politicians, Speech and Mass Media were offered. Mass Media was the study of the various forms of mass communications.

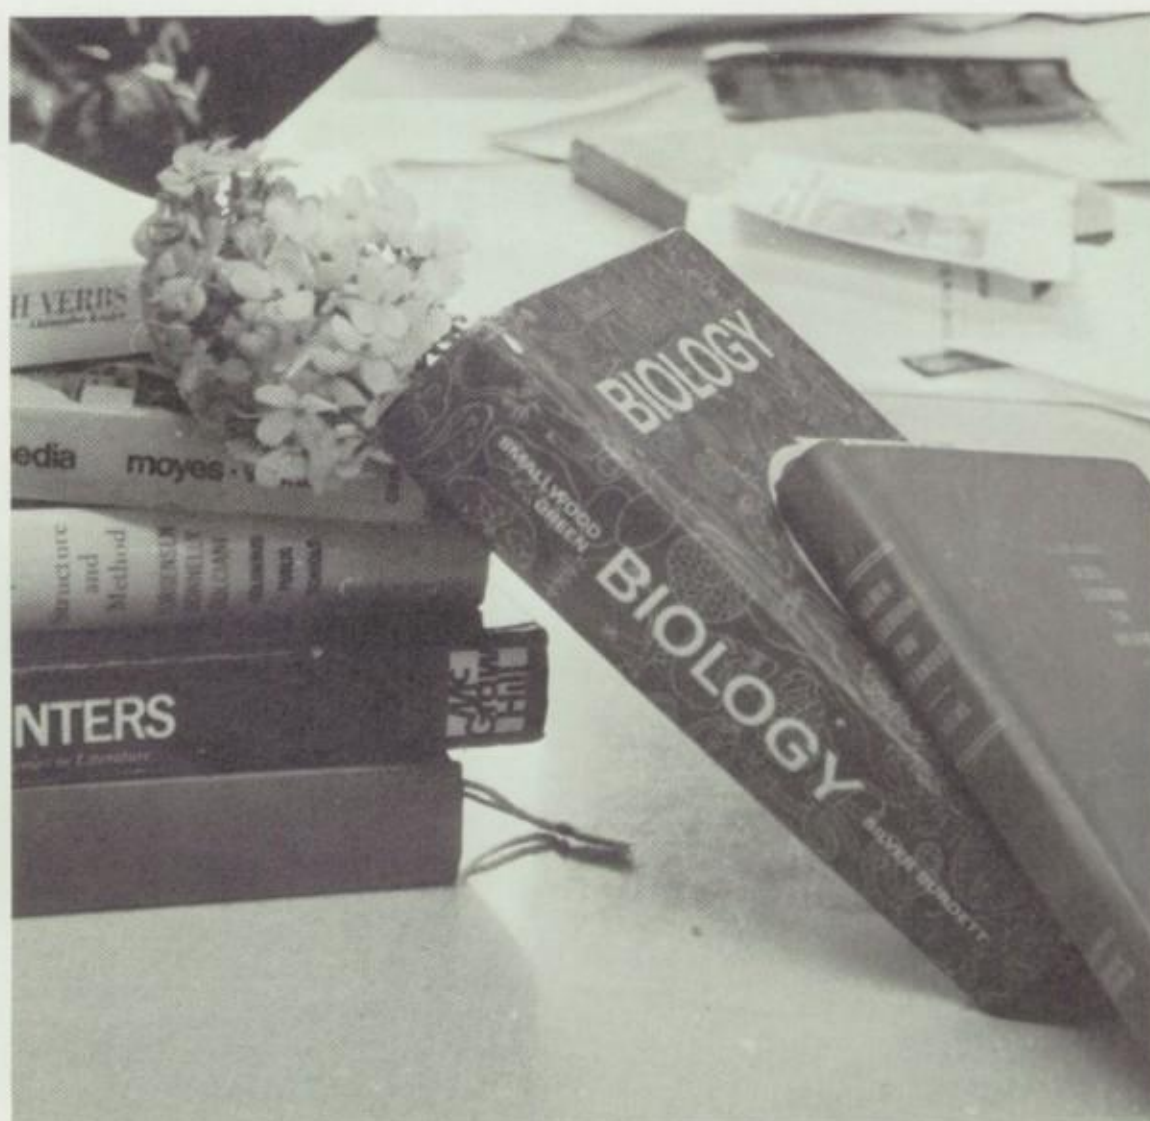

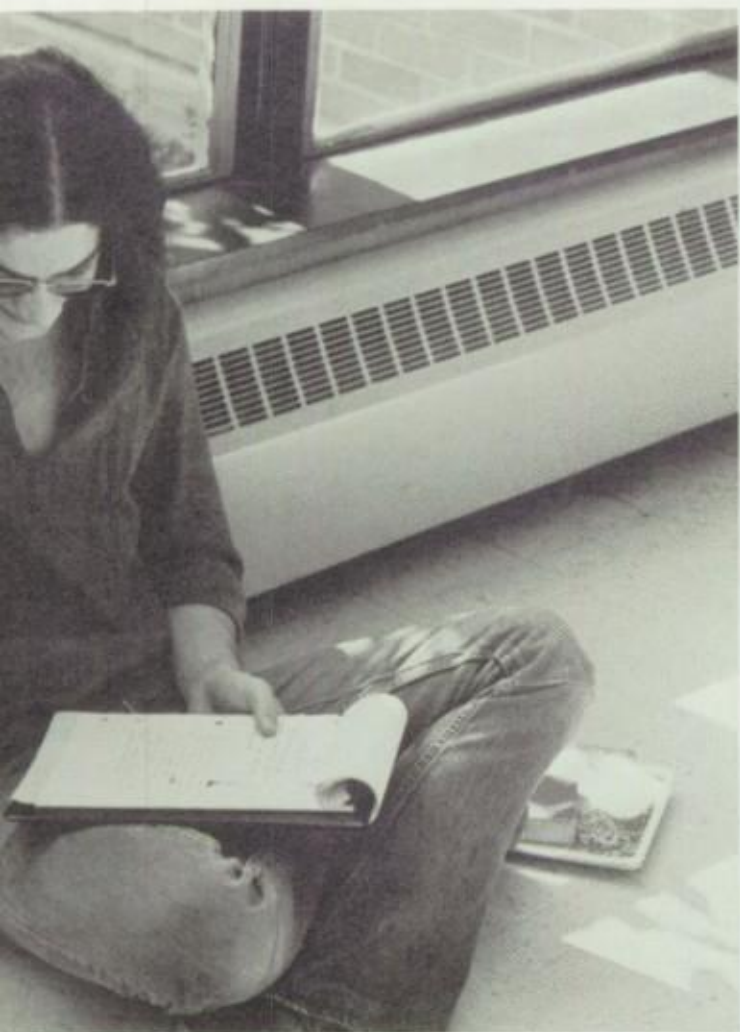

Drama was offered to all thesians, however, students could take it too.

Whetstone had a well-rounded language department. In the dead language department, there was Latin. Students studied Virgil, Cicero, Marshall, etc. They studied epigrams, plays, and essays.

The other languages were French, Spanish, German, and Russian. Each department had novel ways of teaching. They used visual aids and records. By the time most people got through a year of language, they were proficient at many phrases and idioms.

The Russian classes this year held records for their size. Russian I had nine people and Russian II had six. But the atmosphere was relaxing and certainly helped condone the learning processes.

Think Processes Are Utilized

Every junior was required to take American History. This course covered the history of America (of course), and centered in on certain points. For one week everybody gambled their money on the stockmarket, knowing full well at the end they would lose everything. By the time one finished with this course they knew many facts about this country, some of which even the history-makers themselves didn't know.

POD was taken by the Seniors. This stood for Principles of Democracy. Classes studied everything from Mental Health to Communism. Some classes worked on bicentennial projects. Some classes got married. POD Special was a course that taught students some of the practicalities of life. In this course, people got married, had jobs, had babies (figuratively speaking, of course), and ultimately got divorced. This taught the students, if nothing else, what it was like to have to work with someone, and have some dependency on someone else.

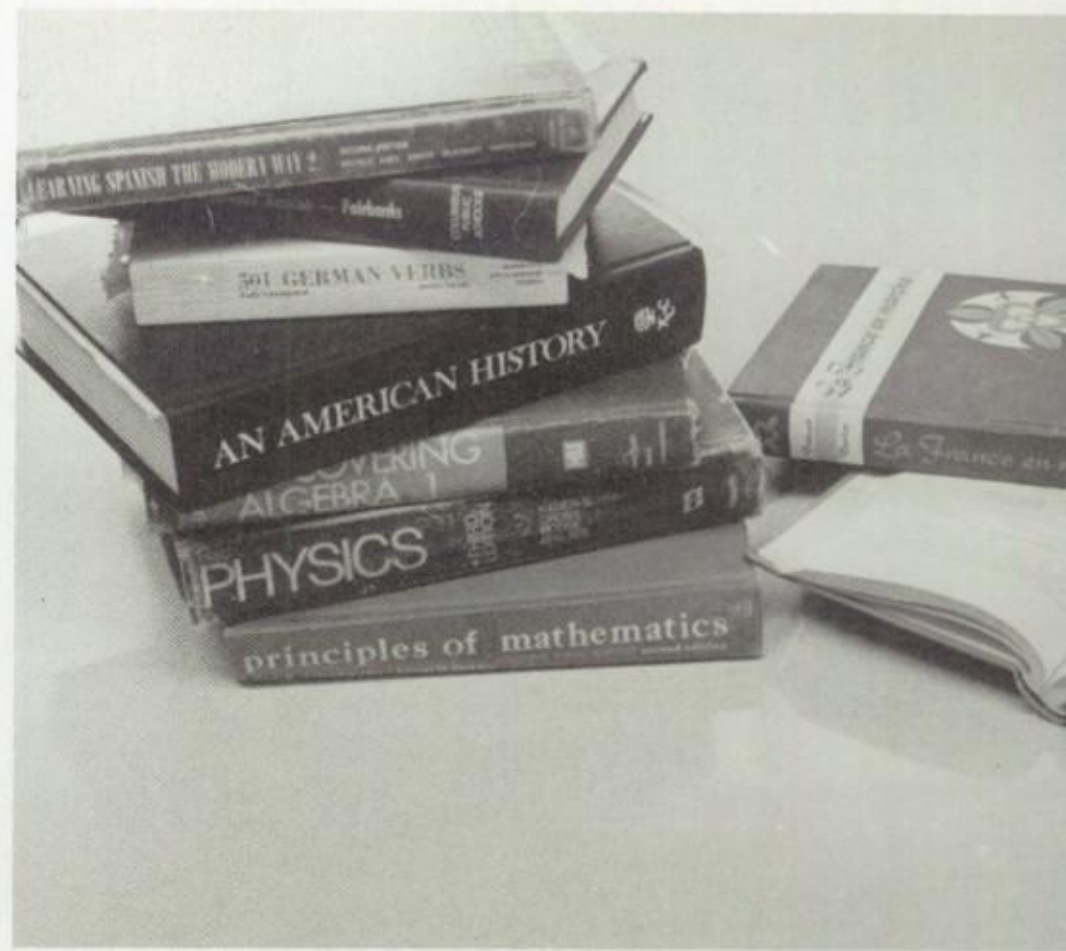

The science classes spanned a wide range of interests. For those who were interested in the structure and function of organisms, biology was the ideal course. For those who liked to blow things up, chemistry fulfilled their need.

Chemistry was a learning-by-doing experience. Instead of a teacher standing at the head of the class explaining how certain chemicals interact, students stood at lab tables risking their lives in the quest for knowledge. Ironically, people often got more out of that than the traditional teaching methods.

Physics was a course consisting of a continuing process of experiments, films, and reading designed to acquaint the student with some knowledge of the nature of the physical world.

For those who added $2 + 2$ and got 5, Mathematics was a much needed course. They worked with fractions, decimals, percents, etc. It was hoped that this course would help them later in life.

But for those who added $2 + 2$, divided by the square root, subtracted twice the sum of their answer and came out with -2 , trigonometry was the answer. Trig covered everything from inverse functions to the application of vectors. Many students came out of that class with a headache but a lot of answers.

If only you would listen now, you could probably hear the strains of "Antiphonal" or "Visions of St. John." Whetstone's music groups were the finest in the state. In every contest, our group got "ones." Choir got many performances out of school — St. Joseph's Cathedral, Mershon, Ohio Theater, etc. There were boy's and girl's glees, and junior choir. This year's junior choir presented "The Creation," complete with guitars and a harmonica.

Instrumental music had a hard way to go this year. Mr. Susi, after fifteen years of teaching, left in April to go to Fort Hayes as an administrator. But they still did a great job. The high point of Marching Band was a big pinball machine, complete with pinball. Orchestra got straight ones in state contest. Even though the instrumental groups played under strange circumstances, they came through with their usual excellence.

Art courses this year covered a broad expanse of media. Students drew, sculpted, made ceramics, and worked with different types of paint. By the time the year drew to a close, the average art student felt they had learned something. It was just another step in the process of becoming another Monet.

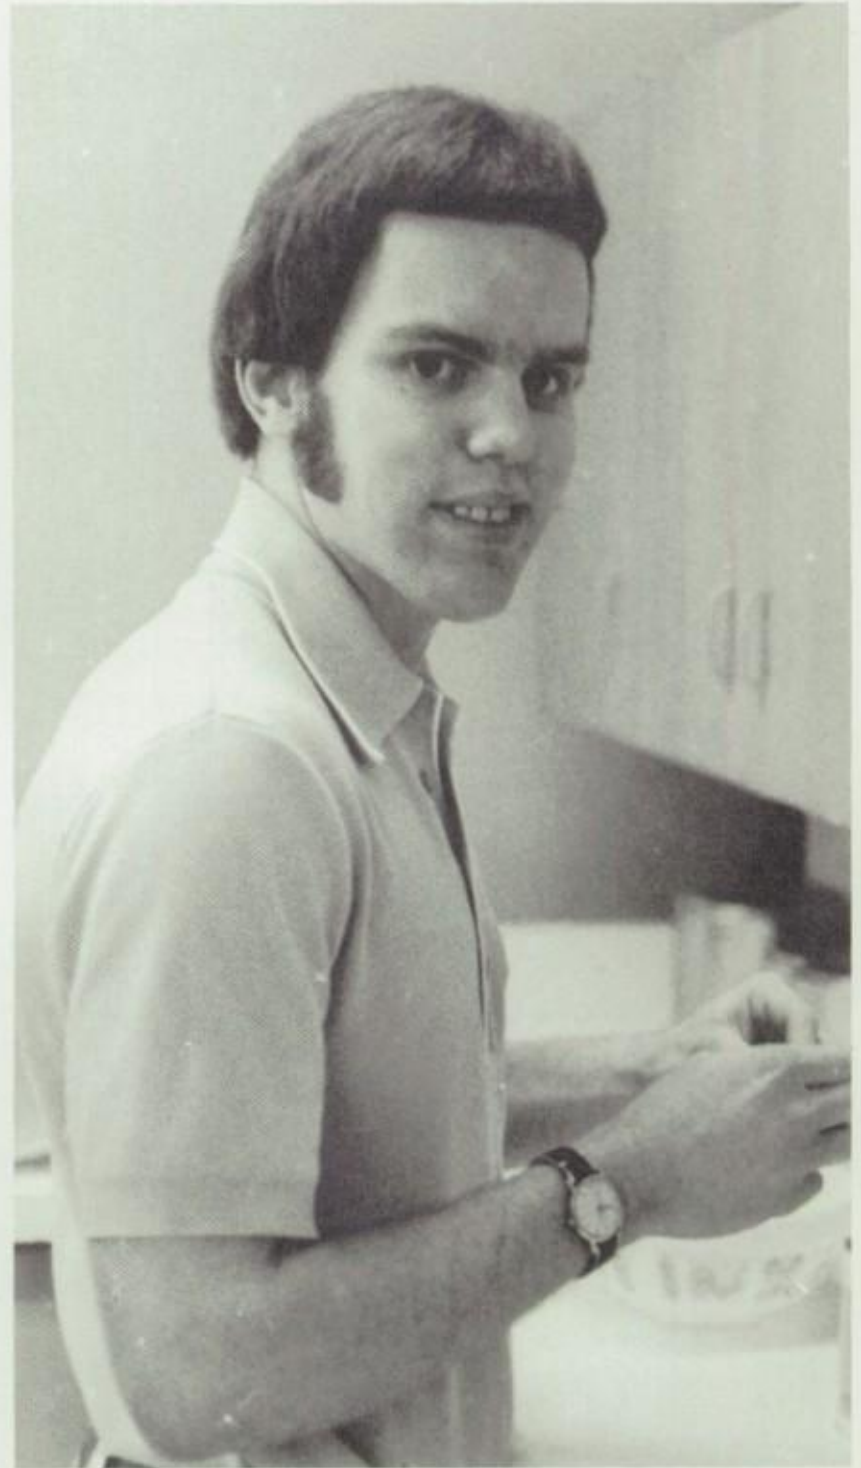

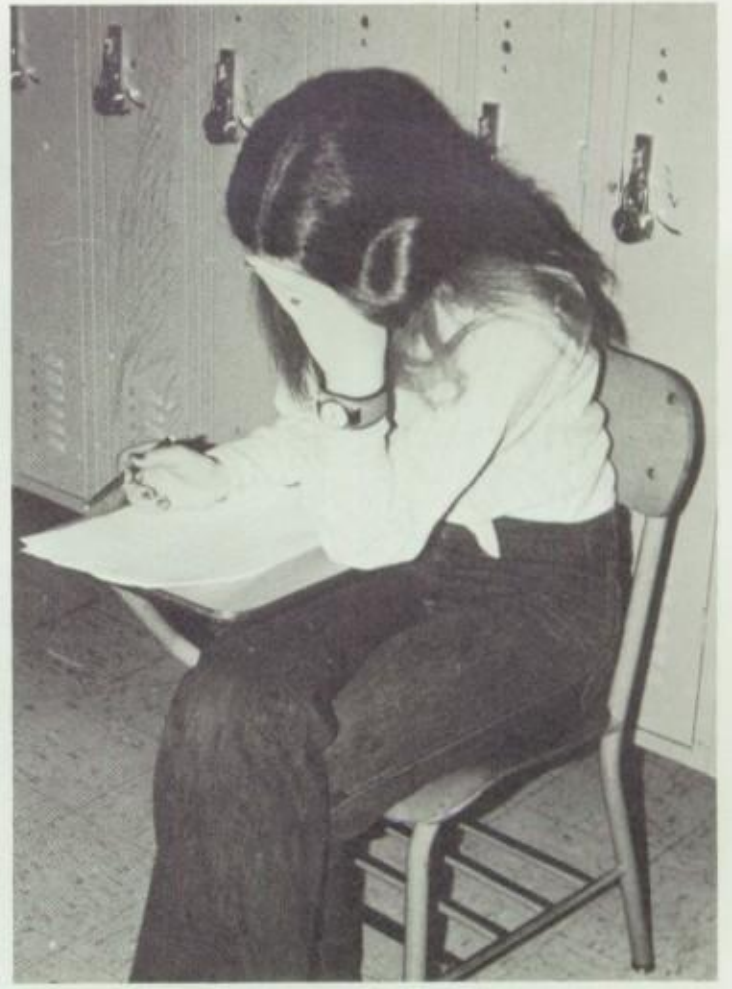

Home Ec prepared many people to fend for themselves later in life. And not only girls, some boys took foods courses too. They learned how to handle kitchen utensils, cook main dishes, and how to make up a food budget.

Many girls were seen walking around in nice outfits that they made themselves. There are two sewing courses — Clothing I and Advanced Clothing. The students made everything from dolls to suits. This will be of great help in their later life, considering the cost of clothing today. Home Management was offered, too. This concentrated mostly on furnishings, food menus, and child care.

Driver's Ed was offered to anyone at least 16 years old, with a temporary driver's license. It taught students driving skills by on-the-road experiences. There was a simulator that enabled a whole class to make the same mistake at once. At the end of this course, a student received a Certificate of Completion, good for an insurance reduction.

Physical Education was held five days a week, one semester. The course covered interesting sports such as archery, handball, bowling, and golf. This year, there was a 12th grade co-ed gym class offered for those who could never get enough of a good (?) thing. Health was a required course. Students studied mental health, drugs, and sex education among other topics. The course was designed to help young people make independent decisions concerning their physical, mental, and social well-being.

At Least One Aspect Appeals To Everyone

Industrial Arts carried a wide range of courses. If one wanted to become a carpenter, there were wood classes. In them, you could make anything from candle sticks to clocks. In advanced wood, specialization was allowed, such as cabinetmaking. In this course, students got to know and use the machinery extensively. There was also a metal course. The class offered exploratory experiences with fundamental hand and tool processes in various types of metal.

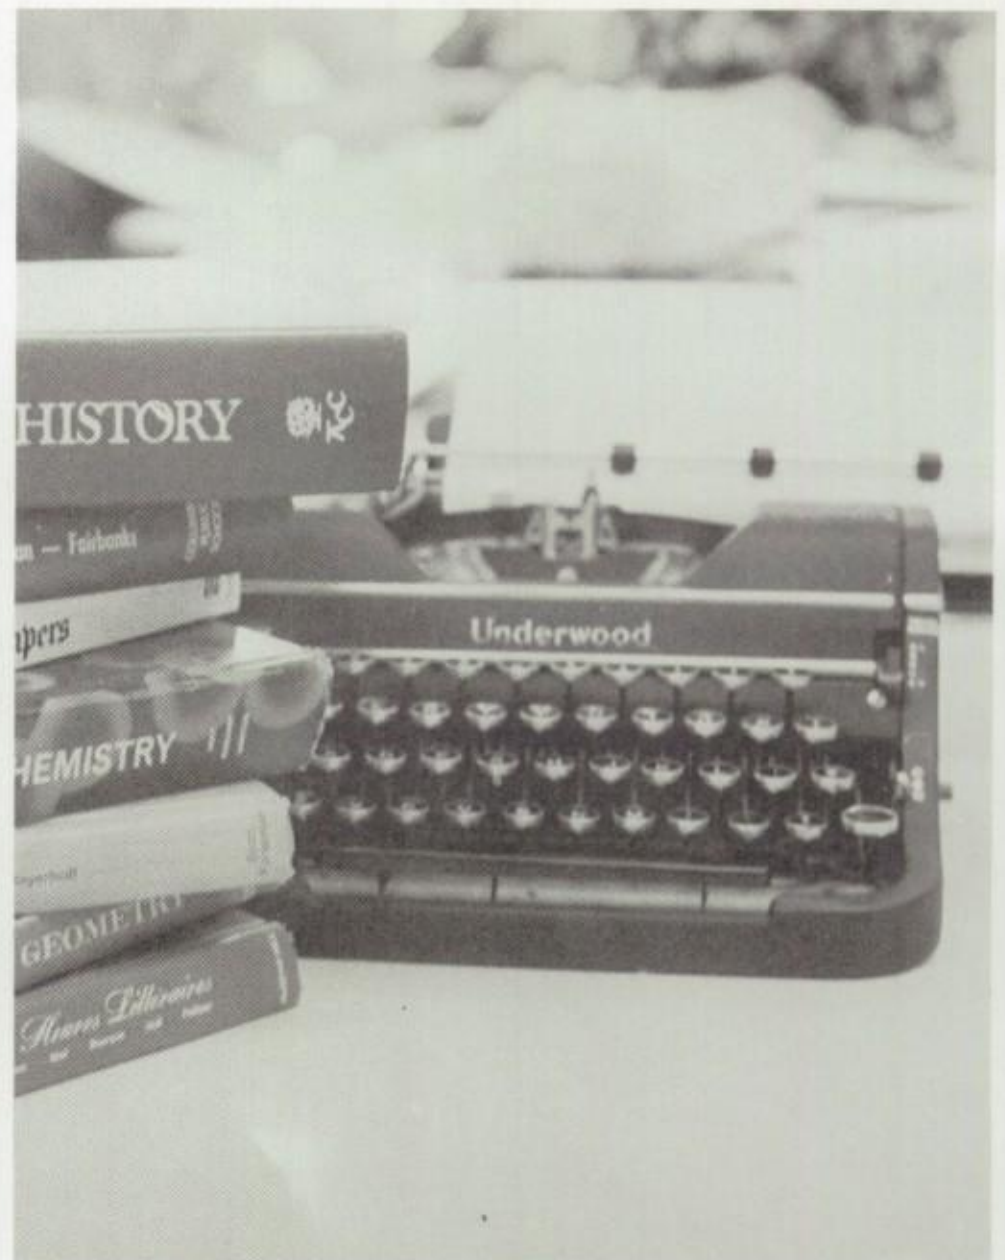

Electricity was also offered. This course consisted of the basic theory of electricity in both theory and lab work. Electronics worked with transmission devices. Drafting courses were for the architecturally minded. Some courses studied lettering, some studied buildings, and others machinery.

There was a whole business section at Whetstone. Business English and Business Math were offered. Book-keeping gave students knowledge of the types of information businesses must keep, and also gave them opportunities to prepare these records.

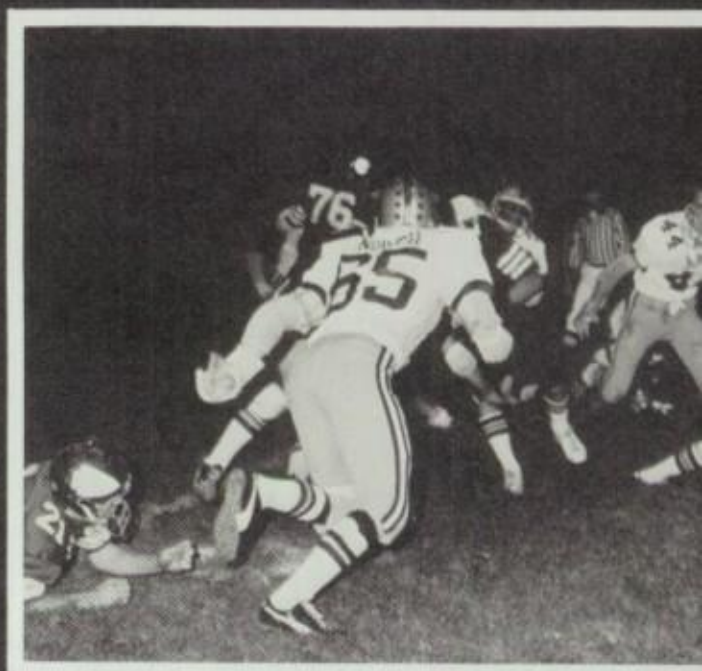

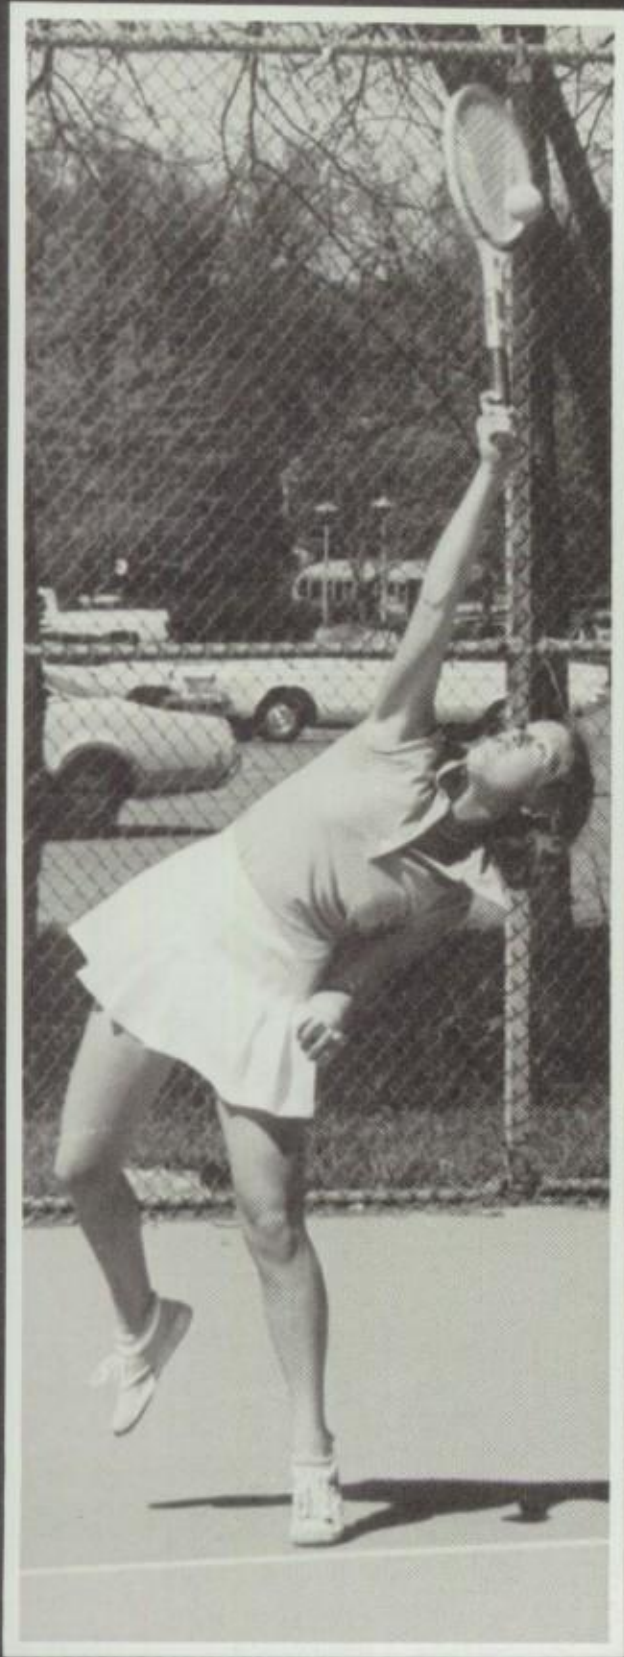

For future secretaries, Typing and Shorthand were offered. All of the business courses were invaluable for the future.

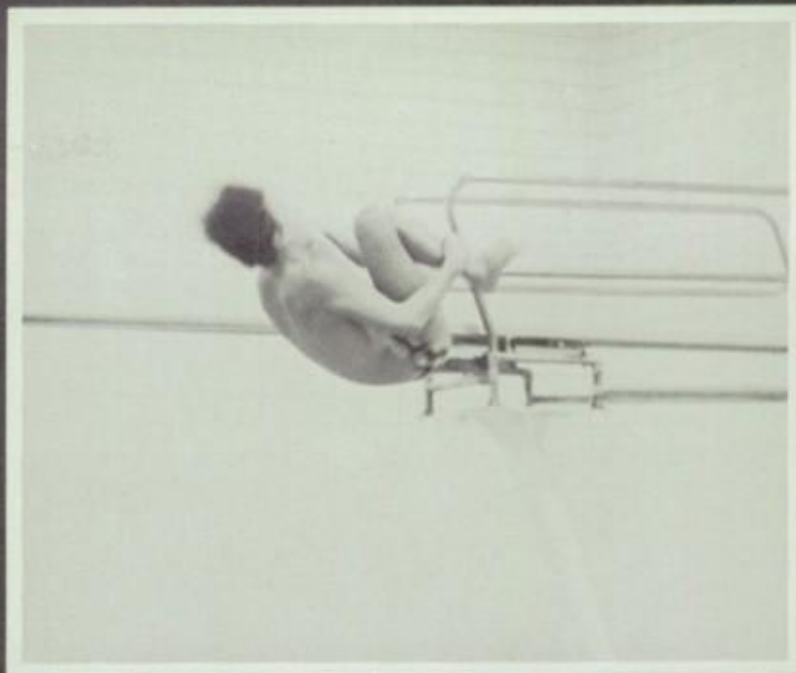

There were also many vocational education classes. The people who took these went to school only part of the day. The other part they worked for academic credit. Co-Operative Office Education taught kids what it was like to work in an office — making records, filing, etc.

Distributive Education involved working with products — buying them wholesale and selling them to other people. This year's DE classes had a store. They sold books, pop, candy, and much more to the students. Occupational Work Experience had two main goals. They wanted to promote the development of leadership ability and develop a sense of identity with others. These groups were all very useful. All the students had an edge on most graduates.

Our cross country team was outstanding this year. They had an overall record against all teams of 40 wins and 20 losses. This year was also the first time that girls ran on the team. Mary Ashcraft and Annie L'Esperance were the first girls to run officially on the Cross Country team. Steve Graham placed fifth in the city and seventh in the district.

Braves race to the tape

Who's Afraid of the Big, Bad Braves

The gridders had an "almost" season. With a 5-4 record, the Braves outscored the opponents 122 to 55 and lost by an average of 9.5 points. One of the highlights of the season was the defeat of arch rival North High School. Individual performances by Rich Dahn, Kevin Furno, Mike Little, Mark Chickerella, Clark Cornell, Greg Milo, and Tom Beaver earned special recognition.

Lack of experience slowed the J.V. team. But I remember how they really came on those last three games to tie Linden McKinley and defeat Brookhaven and Northland.

Outstanding individual performances help the coaches to look forward to a great varsity team next year. I hope to attend all of the games next year, and maybe I can cheer them on to a city title.

Take a Tip from Me

Our girls' Volleyball team was the district runner up in the first Ohio High School Athletic Association Volleyball tournament. The spikers were eighth seeded out of thirty-three teams. Defeats of the fourth, seventh and tenth ranked teams catapulted them into the finals. The team had an impressive season despite some small turnouts.

Swimmers Pool Their Talents

The swimming team began rebuilding this year after graduating four top seniors. A lack of depth hurt the team and left them weak in some events. Strong individual efforts by Mike Borelli and Brian Sullivan who participated in the State meet, helped the team through the season. The final record of 6-7-1 does not reflect much of the hard work put in, but Coach Cellar looks forward to a successful season next year with some great returners.

The Lady Braves displayed their domination of the city league. This was the third straight year that girls were league champions. The team shared the league title with two other teams. A Year for the Leapers

There were many new things about this year's gymnastics team including members, uniforms, and even the coach, Mr. Snyder. Although the team got off to a slow start, they improved steadily throughout the season. I remember one meet against Eastmoor had to be cancelled because of a snow storm that closed the city schools.

Tournaments were organized in soccer, volleyball, softball, tennis, gymnastics and fencing. I remember that the girls' varsity sports hurt the turnouts at first, but some dedicated girls stuck to it to make the intramural sports successful. Maybe next year we'll challenge the guys!

SOPHOMORES

So the Sophomores were to move on up — but it wasn't an easy road. They had to prove to those juniors and seniors that they'd be here for awhile, which was a great test. First, they had to figure out the building. To many it was a labyrinth. They stumbled in accidentally one morning, and were pushed out by the crowds around three in the afternoon. In between those times, amnesia sometimes seemed to set in. Their next obstacle to overcome was the "closed study hall." They had to find numerous ways of being excused — everything from, "I have to go to my locker," to, "Well, my mother and father are both out of a job, and I have to go to work to support my twelve brothers and sisters and . . ."

After that little problem was taken care of there was the monumental one that had no solution. All day, as some innocent soph was walking down the hall, he was grabbed and pulled into a dark closet. All he could remember was the vise-like grip on his shoulder and a gruff voice growling, "Hey kid, ya gonna buy an elevator pass?"

The Junior year is usually the easiest for a student. They know enough to survive, but not enough to have a nervous breakdown. As a junior, one is able to make use of open study halls. And, as we all know, they all stayed in the designated areas — cars, nearby restaurants, and the river. Usually by the junior year, a student knows how to get around in the halls. Armed with a 2' × 3' hall pass, he strides through the hall trying to look important. Alas, that doesn't work. He is stopped by the diligent hall monitor. Since his former ploy didn't work, he falls back on the old faithful, "I'm going to the . . . uh . . . office!" But one thing the junior does have going for him — next year he'll be a senior.

And Now For Something Completely Different

Senior Supper marked the beginning of the end. It was only one of the many Senior activities that took place in late May and early June. The supper was held at Fawcett Center For Tomorrow, and many people attended. Later in the night, prizes were given out to outstanding students in the class such as "Glamour Guy", "Best Seamstress", and "Class Dingbat". These prizes were just meant as gags. It gave everybody a laugh and embarrassed the heck out of the recipients. It also kept everyone's mind off of what was coming up . . .

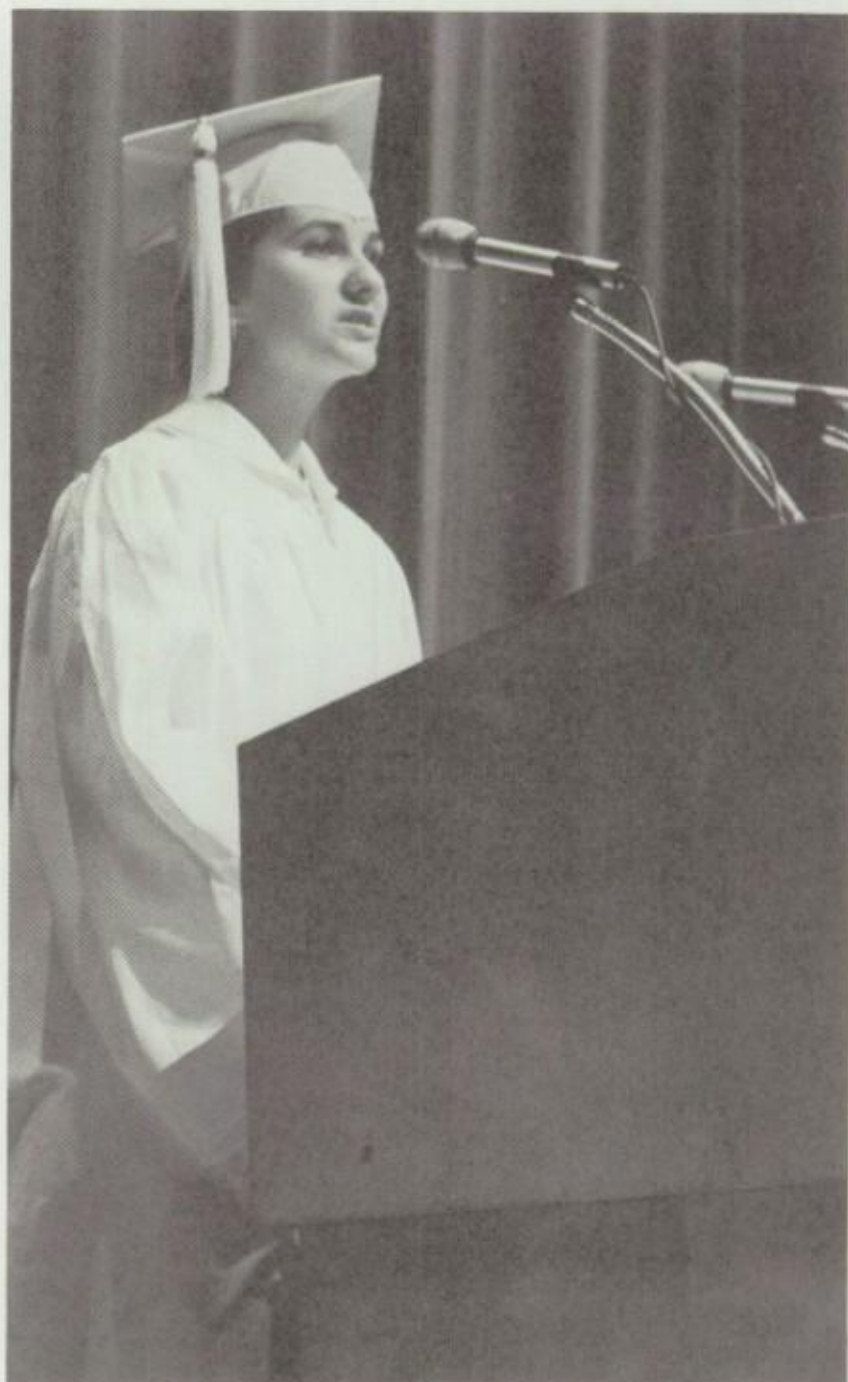

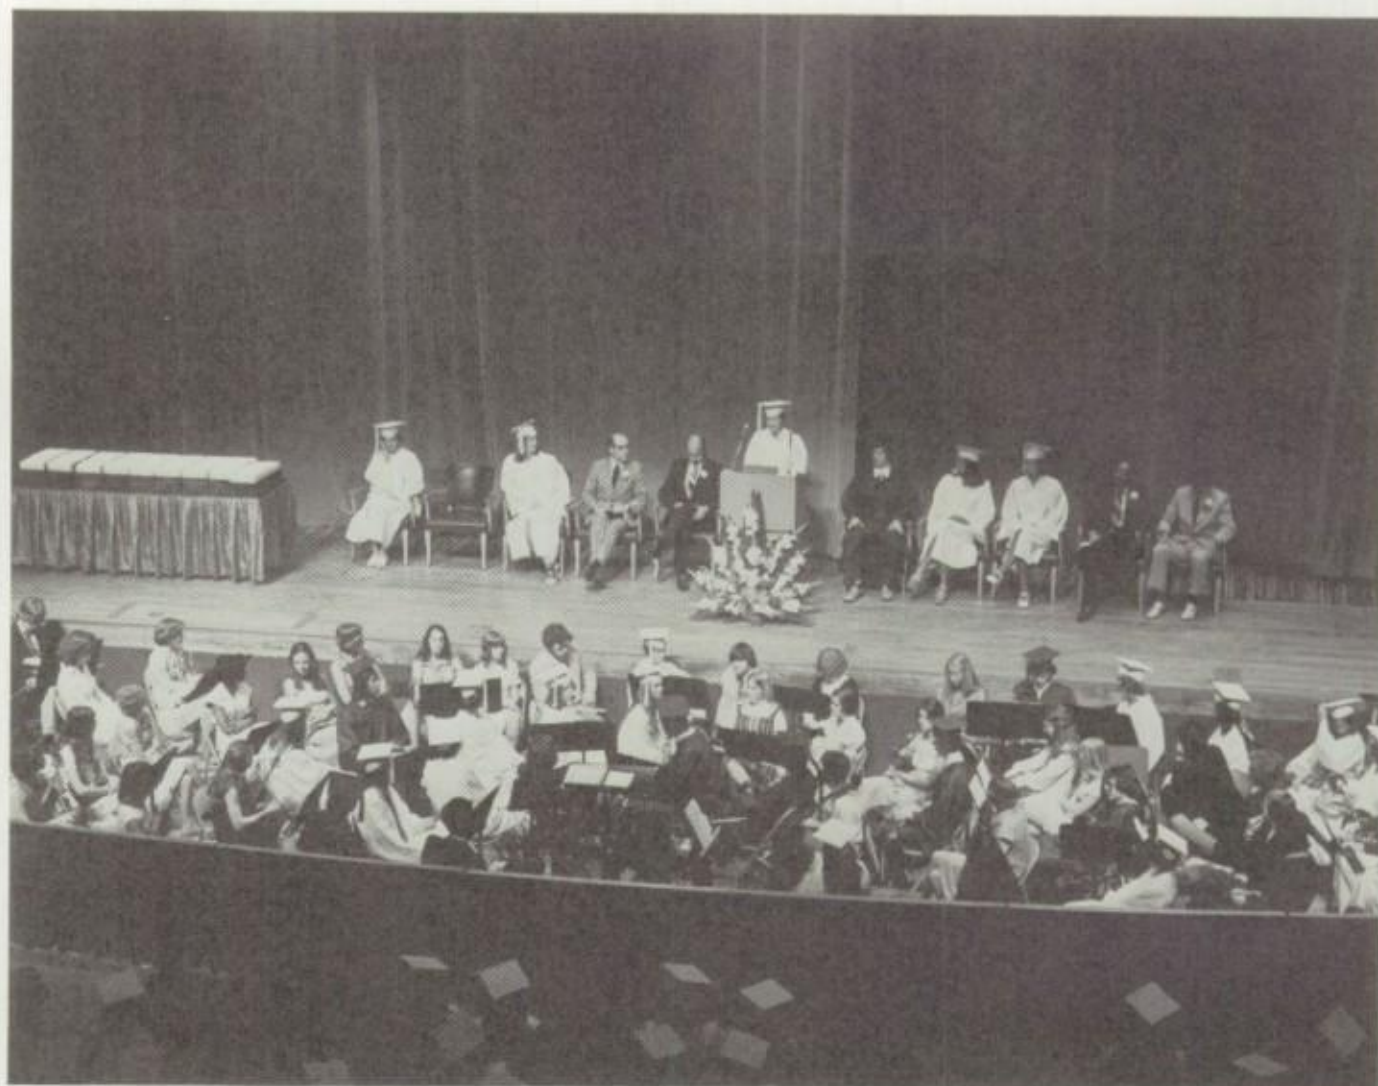

We May Never Pass This Way Again

Prom ... when one heard the word, their heart jumped up in their throat. It was the last high school dance, and took place on Mr. Olympus in a building called Valley Dale. This was among the last days of high school. It was a magical moment, when you were surrounded by everyone you knew and loved, yet by yourself, floating through time and space to a later day, a future time, when this was all past history. Yet, thinking back, it was only yesterday, and once more that beautiful time is re-lived.

We've Only Just Begun

Please, let me get across this stage in one piece, don't let me trip. The ultimate time had just arrived, what we worked thirteen years for — graduation. For everyone was transformed from students to white and blue gowns. It was a thrilling moment, and I tried so hard to be graceful, but that darn cap kept falling forward. The two speakers, Holly Denny and Margaret Dyer, dynamic. They challenged us to think of this not only as getting out of school, but entering the "real" world. We all knew that this was the final hour. After graduation, my little sister asked me if I felt any different. Looking down at my diploma, I really didn't feel any different, not anymore grown up or anything. But I did have this terrific sense of freedom, unlike anything I've ever felt before.

We all know where we are, it's just where we're going that's the puzzle.

LEGEND STAFF

Academics — Jill Britton

Activities — Debby Spencer, Becky Reda

Seniors — Sherry Ellwood, Janice Lindner

Underclass — Debby King, Bill Weber

Sports — Sharon Smithyman, Linda Francis

Supplement — Michelle Tufford, Jackie Paese

Curriculum — Kathy Wolter

Photographers: Don Jones, Cliff Torrie, Danny Leland.

I wish to extend my heartfelt thanks to these people who worked selflessly on staff for no money or credit. They gave up weekends and after school to work on layouts, copy, headlines, etc. Why did they do it? For one of two reasons — either they're dedicated or . . . crazy.

I would also like to thank the following people for making great contributions to the making of the Legend: Mr. Furgason, Mr. Simmons, Mr. Noel, Pete Godzik, Wes Myrick, Mr. Meyer, and the United Parcel Service.

The following students, while not on staff put in a lot of time and effort on staff:

Sharon Shavitt: She went crazy working on indexes . . .

Julie Wolfe: She kept the sales and money situation straight, which explains why we came out 100 supplements short.

Gordon Markley: He worked on everything from posters to embezzlement . . . he was priceless.

Steve Stearns: He's responsible for some of the original and witty headlines appearing in this book.

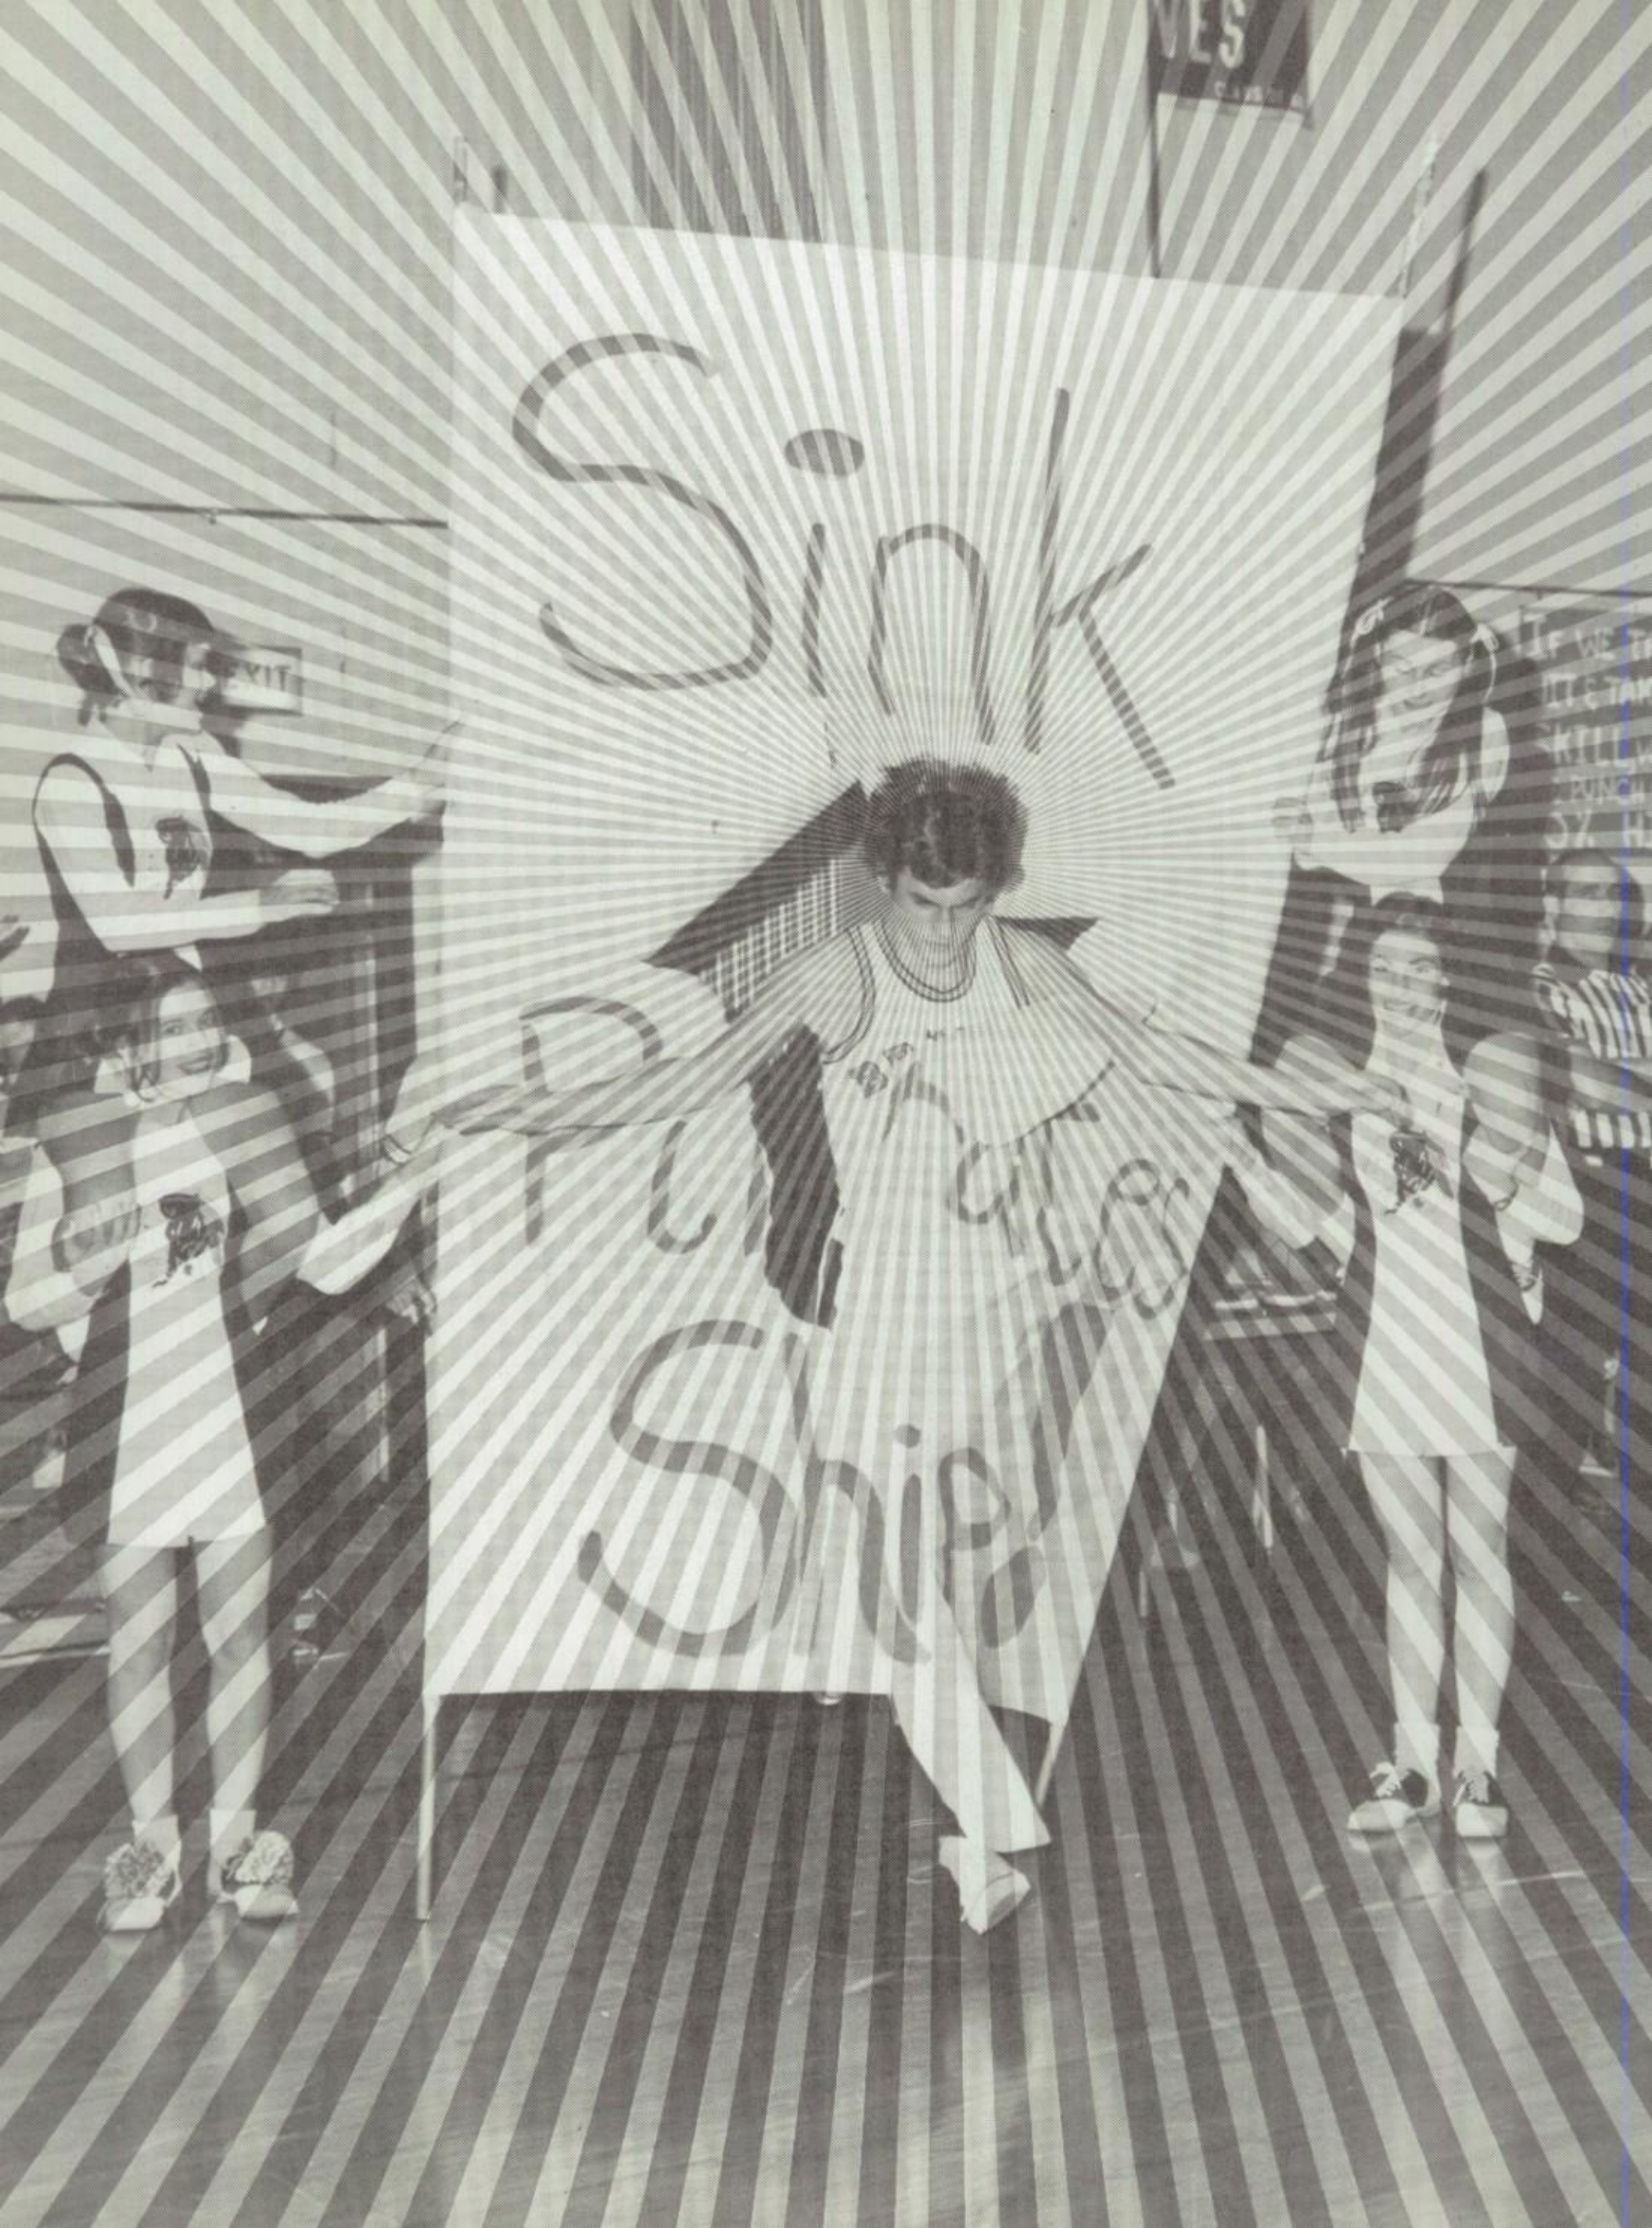

Without these people, I am positive I could not have kept my wits about me . . . I am truly grateful.

NOTE TO WHETSTONE

This Year was a tough one yearbookwise. We had a lot of organizational problems, and many others. But I think I can safely say that this is one of the best yearbooks Whetstone has ever put out. There was a lot of blood, sweat, and tears (literally) put into it. It was a mass inspiration, a singular confusion, and a collective success. All of us love it, and I'm sure that you have to. After all, this is a magic book . . . look how it disappeared until September.

Kathy Wolter
Editor of Legend

. . . excuse me, I left out one credit . . . I'd like to thank Jon Zilber for his excellent moral support. There were many times when I was ready to cry, and he made me laugh . . .

This is the supplement to the fall yearbook.
 This section is for autographs, and the general preservation of memories. Treasure it and take judicious care of it, for it is irreplaceable.

Brian,
 Keep up the high times,

Mac,
What can I say.
I can only express my endless about your coming year as a senior. Don't take it too seriously. Chris Schilling

Mac,
To a kid who did the best he could to get out
work in electronics.
Good luck next year!
Jeff

Mac,
 Sure enjoyed being in the same class
 this year - what a bummer
 it is for you because you still got another year
 Take it easy!
